By JUNE M. HEYDT
Trial was set for Monday, July 18 for the case of the State versus Stacey Lizana at a motion hearing in Circuit Court Wednesday morning.

Motions, pleas and bench trials are on the docket for the first week of the July term of court but, no jury trials will be conducted.

A very frustrated Circuit Court Judge James E. Thomas discharged jury members Tuesday morning who had been selected to serve for the July term of court because there were not enough jurors.

All jury trials scheduled for this week have been cancelled.

Thomas said the jurors selected would receive checks in the mail for their time and thanked them adding, "This is absolutely ridiculous."

Thomas said that any people who were summoned but didn't show up without giving a bonafide reason for not showing will be fined $100.

He added, "This is costing Hancock County a lot of money. I have to be paid, the jury, the bailiffs, the district attorney, and also members of the sheriff's department."

"Justice is not going to get served in this court this week," said Thomas.

"It isn't fair to the attorneys, or even the defendant or the defendant's family," said Thomas.

"I consider serving on the jury to be a duty and a responsibility just like voting."

Thomas apologized to the jury members who had been selected saying, "You have had to sit here for two days and you were kind enough to come and I would like to ask you to tell your friends and neighbors that if they are summoned to appear and do not show up that they will be held in criminal contempt of court and fined $100 or put in jail for up to three days."

On Monday court was recessed at 1:30 p.m. for lack of jurors. Jerry Heitzmann, circuit clerk, issued 100 more summonses to be delivered to registered voters by the sheriff's office that afternoon.

Out of the 100 summonses written Monday afternoon 16 showed up at court on Tuesday morning and out of that number only nine could serve. Of the seven excused, three were over 65, one couldn't find a babysitter, one was ill, and two were under 21.

One hundred registered voters were summoned last week to serve on the special pool of jurors for the murder trial of Henry Paul Jordan, a former Bay St. Louis auxiliary policeman, who was accused in November, 1981 of the shooting death of Rev. Robert Hargett in his construction company offices in Waveland.

Jordan's trial has been rescheduled for Oct. 17.

Each side in a special venire case has 12 challenges of jurors. Thomas declared that a total of 37 jurors was not enough to conduct the trial.

An additional 150 summonses were sent to voters to serve on grand and petit juries last week.

Heitzmann said, "We're having this trouble for several reasons, one is because we haven't had a registration JUSTICE—Page 8A

New Orleans scout drowns in lake

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.

A New Orleans Boy Scout who could not swim drowned in a northeast Hancock County resort lake Tuesday afternoon after apparently venturing into deep water.

This is the third Hancock drowning this year and all of these deaths have involved teenage boys.

Hancock Sheriff Ronald A. Peterson said Wednesday based on a report filed by Deputy Nathan Hoda and Investigator Alvin Ladner, both of the County Sheriff's Department, that Melvin Day, 13, drowned in a lake at Tranquility Trails which is located east of Wolf Creek Road across from Salmen Scout Reservation.

However, a news release issued by Jim Simpson, New Orleans Council—Boy Scouts of America field services director, lists Day's age at 16.

Peterson reported that David Legendre, Salmen's activity director who was in charge of about 50 scout campers that day to swim at Tranquility Trails, had an approximate 30 by 50-foot area roped off by Boy Scout leaders for a swimming section.

The sheriff said Legendre stated the roped off section of the lake was roped in half for swimmers and non-swimmers and the scouts were required to utilize a buddy system while in the water.

One of the youths in the water yelled that Day was missing, so Legendre ordered all the boys out of the water and scout leaders began searching that area of the lake, Peterson reported.

At 2:45 p.m. Ed Frloux, Diamondhead Fire Department fire safety administrator and member of the Hancock Arson Investigation Squad and Diamondhead Dive Rescue Squad, received a telephone report of a possible drowning and in turn notified the sheriff's department, Peterson said.

Gail Nami of the Diamondhead dive squad responded alone to the accident scene, began a scuba-diving search of the lake at 3:40 p.m. and found the youth's body five minutes later in water about 12 feet deep and 39 feet from the shoreline, the sheriff noted.

Peterson said the location of the body indicates Day apparently ventured accidentally into the deep water of the SCOUT—Page 3A

Bennett granted continuance due to attorney's conflict

By JUNE M. HEYDT

A motion for a continuance for the fraud trial of Larry Bennett, mayor of Bay St. Louis, was filed by his attorney, Joe Sam Owen, and approved by Judge James E. Thomas on Monday morning at the opening of the court term for July.

The case was originally filed on Jan. 27, 1983 when Bennett was charged for having work allegedly done on his private residence and that the work was allegedly charged to the city for street repairs.

In April, 1983, Bennett pleaded not guilty to the charges.

The motion for continuance was issued because Bennett's counsel had been advised that another criminal case would be tried in advance of their case and that their case would not be tried until the week of July 18.

Owen had an irreconcilable conflict in that he was scheduled to try a civil case in the same court on July 18 and a civil case in Jackson County on July 21.

The motion requested that due to the conflict of the two cases that Bennett's case be continued until the next term of court.

Reservations requested for farm tour

The annual Farm City Tour, sponsored by the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce in conjunction with the Hancock County Farm Bureau and the Hancock County Extension Service, will be held Thursday, July 21, according to Bill Whitfield, Chamber agriculture committee chairman.

The tour will begin at 9 a.m., when a MCTA bus will load passengers at the Choctaw Plaza Shopping Center, at the corner of US-90 and Hwy. 603.

The tour is open to all members of the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce. Reservations must be made in advance by calling the Chamber office at 467-9048. The deadline for reservations is Tuesday, July 19 at noon.

Year-long Hancock exploration lull ends

Ansley gas wells proposed, state seeking tideland lease

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.

A Louisiana firm is requesting the State Oil and Gas Board in Jackson to integrate all mineral interests in two natural gas units to allow the company to obtain permits to drill wells in the Ansley Field in south Hancock County.

The requests are the first petitions for Hancock oil or gas exploration in more than one year.

In addition, the State Department of Natural Resources is offering almost 100 acres of state-claimed waterbottoms for oil and gas leasing along Jordan River in central Hancock.

Theresa Moody, the state board's hearings administrator, confirmed Tuesday that Celeron Oil and Gas Co. of Lafayette is petitioning for authority to integrate all mineral interests in two 320-acre gas units located between the Ansley Community and Port Blenville Industrial Park.

The proposed exploration represents an expansion of Celeron's activities in the Ansley area.

Celeron operates a well in Section 19, Township 9 South, Range 15 West (the most recent one drilled in Hancock) which is producing 1,721,000-cubic-feet of gas and 112 barrels of oil condensate every 24 hours from the Tuscaloosa Formation between 9,492 and 9,496 feet underground.

Moody explained integration petitions are requested by oil companies when for various reasons some mineral owners in a proposed unit have not consented to lease.

However, the owners not leasing will receive all of their share of production royalties after the oil company recovers drilling costs.

She noted one of the proposed units consists of the south half of the north half and north half of the south half of Section 20, Township 9 South, Range 15 West—adjacent and directly east of Section 19.

Celeron is requesting the unit to re-enter the plugged W.J. Gex No. 1 Well which was drilled for Marshall R. Young Co. in 1956 to a depth of 10,947 feet and completed in the Washita-Fredricksburg Formation, but did not produce oil or gas, Moody said.

The Louisiana company is proposing to rework and deepen the well to 12,000 feet, she reported.

The work is scheduled to begin in early August, Moody said.

An exception in location is sought for the well which is located 990 feet from the west line and 330 feet from the south line of the proposed unit, she noted.

Point of Law

(Prepared by the Mississippi State Bar. Some legal rights may vary from locality to locality. Always consult an attorney when in doubt about your rights.)

Q: My husband and I are thinking about buying a home. The builder has a good reputation. However, I have heard instances where people have bought homes from builders that had to pay some of the builder's bills. How can I keep this from happening to me?

A: Before you sign any documents agreeing to buy the home, review them with your lawyer. He will insure that the contract provides that title will be transferred to you clear of any and all liens. When the time for the actual transfer of title comes, he will perform what is known as a "title search" to insure that when title transfers to you, there will be no outstanding liens against the property, except those you agree to assume or incur.

I received a bill from a local department store for clothing purchased by my husband. I paid the bill by check. However, without my knowledge, my husband had written several checks. The department store check bounced. The store wrote me a nasty letter saying that unless I paid immediately, plus a ten dollar charge for the returned check, they would file charges with the district attorney. I intend to pay them, but I was upset by their letter. What should I do?

A: Mississippi law provides that criminal charges for a "bad check" may be brought only when there is a simultaneous exchange of the "bad check" for goods or services. The issuance of a "bad check" for a past due obligation has not been a criminal offense in Mississippi.

However, beginning on January 1, 1984, issuing such a check may constitute a crime. Still, in any case, there must be fraudulent intent and knowledge of insufficient funds in the account in order for a crime to have been committed.

There is presently no statutory authority for a $10 service charge, but beginning January 1, 1984, the law specifically provides for such a charge if the check is not paid by you within 15 days of the "nasty letter," the law presumes the fraudulent intent and knowledge of insufficient funds.

MEET TIM PETERSON

Tim Peterson is the new director of the Materials Management department here at Hancock General. He previously worked for four years as the storeroom supervisor in the materials management department at Gulf Coast Community Hospital in Biloxi before coming to Hancock General. Tim and his wife, Beth, reside in Long Beach. The materials management department is responsible for providing quality medical products and supplies for the hospital at the lowest possible cost. Included in this responsibility is the continuous flow of supplies throughout the hospital. Careful anticipation of the demand for supplies adds to the complexity of Tim's duties as director of the materials management department. We think this department is very vital to assuring that our patients receive the best at the lowest possible cost. Hancock General, your community hospital that cares, is committed to providing the people of the area with the best in patient and health care, and we think it's time you got to know us!

swimmer's area. The volunteer Diamondhead diver, after performing her first body recovery with the recently-formed squad, was visibly shaken just after the grim experience.

Carl Banderet, county coroner, conducted an inquest at the accident scene and determined the cause of death as accidental drowning.

Divers Pat Sullivan of the Gulfport Fire Department and Robbie Cox of the Gulfport Police Department arrived at the scene to assist, but the body had already been recovered by Nami.

Baylous Funeral Home of Picayune arrived at the scene to remove Day's body from the lake shore.

The Boy Scout news release lists that Day was a member of Troop No. 8 of New Orleans participating in the 'free swimming program' conducted at Salmen.

Roger Dale Ladner, District Three supervisor, at the accident scene reported the scouts were utilizing the Tranquility Trails lake because the Salmen reservoir was recently emptied after its retaining dam was found to be weakening.

Board of Supervisor
District 1

I would like to take this opportunity to express my appreciation to the people of District 1 for allowing me to serve as their Supervisor for the past 7 1/2 years. Because of the redistricting, the West end of the County or Pearlinton area will now be in District 2, but I will forever be grateful to the people of that area for their support and co-operation for the past 7 1/2 years as their Supervisor.

Although up to now I have only represented a small area of Waveland, I have enjoyed the same cooperation from its residents as well as City officials.

I would like to appeal to the voters of District 1, including the new area, for your support in the upcoming election August 2. If elected, I will continue to work in harmony with the elected City and County officials to improve our County and municipalities.

I do have some future plans when re-elected:

1. With the reduced size and distance in District 1, I will be able to conduct a better maintenance program for Ansley, Lakeshore, Clermont Harbor, Bayside Park and Springwood Park.

2. I have recently initiated the formation of a committee to seek funds for reconstruction and maintenance of our sand beach. Not only is our beach protection for the road, it is important for recreation.

3. I have an agreement with Supervisor Sam Perniciaro of District 4, to have a permanent machine and small crew to keep the beach clean.

I am proud to say that District 1 has fine operating equipment, and one of the finest maintenance crews in the county. I am proud of our past accomplishments and in spite of our present economic depression and high unemployment, our County has continued to grow and prosper. With your vote and support, I will continue striving for improvements in our County and Cities, so you and I and our children will have a better place to live and make a living.

Quotables by Cuevas

We know that Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Jacobi of Bay St. Louis have been beaming lately about the exploits of their daughter Mary Jo.

Mary Jo was recently appointed special assistant to President Ronald Reagan for public liaison.

On President Reagan's recent visit to Mississippi, Mary Jo joined him and was able to call her parents via telephone while traveling on Air Force One.

It is a long way from Bay St. Louis to be an advisor to our President on matters of business, commerce, and trade.

We would like to congratulate Mary Jo on her appointment, and wish her many years of success as being an advisor to our President.

There are many political forums and rallies going on with only a couple of weeks before the first primary election.

We noted one candidate carrying around an appointment calendar, so he can log the rallies and forums and even fairs and benefits.

Everyone we talk to mentions as to how 'quiet' this election appears to be. This is not only for Hancock, but other counties as well.

We know it is early to mention, but we are hoping many will vote on August 2.

We hope everyone is aware of the no glass ordinances for our sand beaches.

Yet there are those who apparently ignore the law as broken glass and bottles seem to appear after every weekend, not to mention the trash left behind.

It looks like police are going to have to possibly issue a few citations to get the attention of some folks.

Wouldn't it be nice to have a nice clean beach.

News from the Governor

A suntan may give older persons a healthy look, but it could lead to serious health problems, according to the Mississippi Council on Aging (MCOA).

"Ultraviolet (UV) radiation from the sun can cause long-term skin damage, even if the skin does not appear to burn," said Jay C. Moon, MCOA director.

"Rays from the sun damage the elastic fibers beneath the skin's surface," he said, "and dark patches, sometimes referred to as 'age spots,' may appear on sun-exposed skin with age. Beyond leathery-looking, thickened skin, lines and wrinkles around the eyes, on the upper lip and on the neck and hands usually result from prolonged sun exposure."

Moon said that a strong dose of UV radiation also can be delivered by sunlamps. "Dermatologists agree that sunlamps and skin coloring products can produce skin damage and warn that they must be used with great care."

"An estimated 300,000 cases of skin cancer annually result from overexposure to the sun over a period of years," he said. "Generally, skin cancer is easily cured when detected early, but it often recurs if prolonged exposure to the sun continues."

Moon suggested that older citizens guard against overexposure to the sun's rays by sunbathing in early morning or late afternoon.

"Individuals whose work or other activities require them to be outside all day or most of the day should be particularly careful to protect their skin from the sun."

Matters of Health

CONSTIPATION

Q. I do not have a bowel movement everyday. Does that mean I'm constipated?

A. Constipation is defined as bowel movements that are too hard to pass easily—or that are so infrequent that uncomfortable symptoms result. You are not constipated if you fail to have a bowel movement everyday.

For some people, a "regular" bowel movement may be only every two, three or even four or five days. It depends on a person's life-style, diet, exercise patterns and body makeup.

Q. When does it become constipation?

A. If you have fewer than two bowel movements a week, experience pain or difficulty in passing a stool, and encounter such other problems as rectal bleeding, you probably are constipated.

Q. What do you do for constipation?

A. Often a change in diet will solve the problem. However, constipation can be organic, especially in middle-aged and older people. It can be caused by a tumor or cancer that is obstructing the intestines or by other diseases that interfere with the function of the intestines. If constipation occurs suddenly or is associated with severe intestinal cramps or with passing blood, you should see a doctor.

A proper diet that includes high-fiber foods is undoubtedly the safest and easiest way to cure constipation. High-fiber foods—vegetables, fruits and whole grains—provide the bulk that makes for normal passage of intestinal contents. Decreasing your intake of animal fats and refined sugars is helpful, since these contain little or no bulk or roughage. It also is useful to drink plenty of liquids, as much as seven or eight glasses a day. But avoid soft drinks heavy with refined sugars.

Lengthy bedrest and lack of exercise can contribute to constipation. If you are not bedridden, exercise like brisk walking or more demanding exercises like tennis or racquetball build strong abdominal muscles that aid the bowels in eliminating gas and stools.

It is possible to successfully cultivate regular bowel habits. Select a time shortly after breakfast or dinner, relax, and attempt to have a bowel movement. Often, patience, persistence, proper diet and exercise will result in regular movements.

Q. Are laxatives and enemas useful in curing constipation?

A. Either of these should be used with extreme caution, and if possible, under a doctor's guidance. The use of both laxatives and enemas can become habit-forming, and instead of curing the problem, they will only serve to add problems.

Occasionally, laxatives are necessary. However, a bowl of bran cereal before bedtime may be just as effective and less expensive.

The regular use of laxatives can deplete the body of minerals, such as potassium, and lead to kidney damage. Limit the use of antacids too, because some can cause constipation. A mild enema may be helpful, but like the laxatives, it, too, can become a crutch.

Stop worrying. Too many people suffer from imaginary constipation. If you are following a good diet, and getting regular exercise and having bowel movements only three or four times a week, that's probably normal for you.

IN CONGRESS

By Cong.
Trent Lott

UNDERSTANDING WASHINGTON

To understand Washington, you must have a basic understanding of the political players.

You must know, for example, that Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill represents a mostly liberal constituency in eastern Massachusetts, including wards in the City of Boston.

You must also know that Congressman Ron Paul represents a largely conservative district in southern Texas, serving its interests in the nation's capital.

Beyond that, however, it also helps to know the language, and Washington has come up with a language all its own. Unless you follow it daily, it's almost impossible to understand.

So, my good friend and colleague Congressman Tom Kindness of Ohio has defined a few words and expressions which, if taken at face value, can cause considerable confusion. Some of his definitions follow and are great helps in understanding a language we call "Washingtonspeak."

* Administration—refers to the grouping of unnamed individuals who surround and frustrate a president;

* Appropriation—legislation which spends money we don't have;

* Authorization—legislation saying that the bureaucracy can spend up to a certain amount of money provided Congress can confiscate or borrow it;

* Deficit reduction—a pretense for raising taxes, not to be mistaken for a reason to control spending;

* Economic indicators—liar's statistics; the reason why some people think the government should control prophets;

* Entitlement—a concept originally developed by Robin Hood of Sherwood Forest which holds that someone else is "entitled" to your money;

* Regulatory process—three steps involving

1. legislation—the patchwork that results which 535 congressmen and senators try to have an impact on public policy;

2. regulation—a rule of the bureaucracy which has the force of law, even though no elected official approved it, and it's probably wrong;

3. judicial review—the opportunity for a judge to decide that both the Congress and the bureaucracy were wrong;

* Revenue enhancement—a tax increase;

* Tax equity—a tax increase for someone else;

* Tax expenditures—revenue "losses" that result when the government fails to take all of your money;

* Tax reform—a tax increase;

* Spending cuts—failure to increase funding to the extent demanded by a program's constituency.

POWER MUST BE INTOXICATING

Judging from several decisions handed down by the United States Supreme Court in recent days, it can only be concluded that power is intoxicating.

There appear to be no other reasons for the alarming judgments rendered by the virtually unaccountable justices on the august body, Supreme Court justices are appointed by the president for life and, going by the recent decisions, they should be happy they aren't elected.

But presidents are elected. And, this summer's decisions have underscored the Supreme Court's awesome power and given us a stern reminder of why presidents and the appointment process are so important.

Washington newspaper, in an analysis of recent decisions, said the court's actions over the past few months reminded the country of something many people might have forgotten: "...the court has immense power and knows how to use it."

Here are four of the court's most controversial decisions of the past few months:

* Struck down the "legislative veto" contained in more than 200 federal laws. (The provision gave Congress some control over bureaucrats in rule-making.)

* Invalidated 33 anti-abortion laws in the states.

* Sidetracked de-regulation in the automobile industry in a decision related to airbags and mandatory seat belts.

* Required near perfect statistical splits of population in connection with re-districting of congressional boundaries.

The founding fathers made the Supreme Court an aloof, untouchable body for good reasons and once a justice has been seated he or she is in place for life. That's why the election of the president who can fill vacancies on the court is so important.

The People's Business

PRIVATE INDUSTRY COUNCIL

Just over two dozen Mississippians gathered in the state capital a few days ago, representing a unique partnership of government, education, business, and industry. The meeting came at a significant time in Mississippi.

The group made up the membership of the newly created Private Industry Council, and the two-day session was designed to instruct the Council members as to their responsibilities for oversight of the state's job training programs.

Purpose of the Council is to marshal the forces of business, government, and education for providing training to prepare Mississippi youths and adults for the job market.

Creation of the Council comes at a time when Mississippians have expressed disappointment in many of the vocational programs previously offered. That is, of course, not to say that Mississippi hasn't had some highly successful job training programs, but it is a recognition that the program can be improved.

The significant timing of the Council's creation results from a renewed commitment to excellence in education in Mississippi.

It comes at a time when Mississippians, generally, have decided to do something about the state's educational system.

It comes at a time when the state has decided to improve the quality of its labor force.

Council members, all outstanding business, government, and education leaders, are uniquely qualified to take the lead in improving this segment of the state's system of education. Mississippi can expect the quality of vocational training under the Council to improve—and soon.

World's fair train almost a certainty for Gulf Coast

By JUNE M. HEYDT

Delmer E. Wilcox, Louisiana-Mississippi-Alabama Rapid Transit Commission representative, attended a special meeting conducted in Washington D.C. Tuesday concerning the train from Mobile to New Orleans to be built for World's Fair traffic.

At the meeting a senate appropriations subcommittee urged Amtrak to establish a demonstration intercity rail passenger service before the opening of the world's fair next May.

After attending the meeting Wilcox said, "I really do believe now that we will have this Amtrak train which will run twice a day, leaving Mobile in the morning and returning from New Orleans in the afternoon."

The meeting was called for 10 a.m. but was cancelled until 2:30 p.m. said Wilcox and added that he felt they were very fortunate that it was postponed because it gave them (Senators John C.

Stennis and Thad Cochran) a chance to get together with the senators from the other two states involved.

"We gathered enough support to present our position to the senate appropriations subcommittee who in turn urged the establishment of the service."

The legislation, sponsored by senators Stennis and Cochran, members of the appropriations committee, will be incorporated in the 1984 Transportation Appropriations Bill.

"I felt that we had a pretty good representation," said Wilcox. "Trent Lott sent his people to give us good backing also. Lott has been the ramrod behind the funding we got in the beginning. Without Lott's support last year we may not have achieved this goal."

John Perkins, Cochran's press secretary, said late Wednesday, "At the markup session for the next fiscal year the committee asked Amtrak to include in their budgeting, funds for the service."

Perkins went on to say that this train will turn out to be much more than just a train to get to and from the World's Fair. "It will help the whole tourist industry on the Gulf Coast. We just had to get it started," he said.

The proposed 145-mile route from Mobile will pass stations at Pascagoula, Biloxi, Gulfport, and Bay St. Louis on the way to New Orleans.

The route is part of the one-time Gulf Wind passenger route of the Louisville and Nashville Railway, now the Seaboard System.

The three states must submit an application to Amtrak requesting the service and show willingness to share the cost. The train will operate daily on a roundtrip schedule.

Wilcox concluded by saying, "This is a train of the future, it will help the growth of this area."

Mississippi Farm Bureau Federation

FARMING PROSPECTS BLEAK

Mississippians, be nice to your neighborhood farmers. They need it!

After taking it on the chin for nearly a decade now — hoping that things would really click for them for a change — state farmers are entering what is normally the mid-season period several weeks late with most of their crops, insects taking liberties as virtually never before, prices generally still stagnated, and hope for autumn profits practically non-existent.

A pessimistic outlook? You bet.

Last week agriculturalists came together in Jackson through the auspices of the Association of Mississippi Agricultural Organizations to hear specialists with the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service paint an ugly picture for the 1983 crop year.

The cold, wet spring following a long mild winter was not what the insect doctor ordered, according to Extension entomologists. Chewing insects are on standby in the fringe of fields waiting for farmers to put on their annual picnic spread.

Only this year it was worse. With no bone-chilling hard freezes to freeze many of them to death during the winter, the resident population of boll weevils, bollworms, budworms and various other pests survived the rigorous winter. And with more field residue than usual because of the federal Payment-In-Kind crop set-aside program, insect pests had more places to colonize through the winter.

Entomologist Bob Head told the farm gathering that Mississippi is experiencing a large build-up of insects that in some counties is ten times greater than a year ago. The weevil head count is ascertained through 300 miles of weevil trap lines located through the delta country.

Head reported that his agency is utilizing the services of a Texas computer to monitor the destructive activities going on in Mississippi cottonfields which peaked in many counties the first week of July.

And if cotton pests are not enough, this state is reeling from stinkbug attacks in south Mississippi in alarming proportions. These pests are invading wheatfields in such numbers, Head reports, that farmers have been forced to stop and clean their combines of their gummy little carcasses.

One delta cotton grower has reported a destructive raid on his fields by a sphinxworm — an ugly, long creature that looks like a tomato hornworm but whose appetite is less epicurean.

Dr. George Mullendore reports that Mississippi's '83 cotton crop is faring poorly in many places because of the lateness of the season, cool nights, and too much moisture. He believes the best state growers can hope for is an average crop. Average temperatures for May and June were the second lowest on record.

Cotton crops are generally too grassy because of the weather conditions, which will affect yields.

About the only crop that got a fairly good report was rice which is looking pretty good despite its lateness and more grass in the fields than usual.

LET'S GET THINGS HAPPENING! VOTE FOR AND ELECT LLOYD ANDERSON

SUPERVISOR DISTRICT THREE HANCOCK COUNTY

and get 'Things Happening'

HOW?

Anderson has the programs to get 'Things Happening' in District Three.

Anderson feels the 3½ miles or so of roads paved in the last 3½ years is not enough for District Three—

Anderson proposes--ROAD PROGRAMS To upgrade and pave as many roads as possible in the next four years in District Three.

Anderson feels there has been a lack of Work Programs for District Three—

Anderson proposes--WORK PROGRAMS Initiate a program to work people in emergency situations on a rotating basis. This program's to be for the unemployed, elderly, and handicapped, with low fixed incomes. A few days of work could mean everything to these people.

Anderson feels far too many people have been unemployed in Hancock County—

Anderson proposes--EMPLOYMENT Investigate thoroughly as to why Hancock County has one of the highest percentages of unemployment in our state. And also look into the matter as to why so many Hancock natives have to seek employment elsewhere.

Anderson feels there has been a lack of communication between the people and the leadership in recent years—

Anderson proposes--COMMUNITY MEETINGS Hold community meetings every three months to discuss the problems of the people and secure their ideas on current items of importance for District 3 and Hancock County. These meetings will be in every community.

Anderson feels some communities have been left out in the amount of work done in District Three—

Anderson proposes-- EQUAL REPRESENTATION Every community in District Three will be represented by equal spending of tax dollars. I feel tax dollars should not be spent for only a few areas of District Three, but should be shared among the entire district. Cedar Point and Diamondhead have been entirely left out.

Anderson feels we need Summer Jobs for our young people—

Anderson proposes--SUMMER PROGRAMS Summer programs should be developed to work high school and college students with families having financial difficulties. And most of all, encourage our youth to continue their educations.

TO GET THINGS HAPPENING AND HAVE A STRONG HANCOCK COUNTY, A SUPERVISOR HAS TO BE CREATIVE AND HAVE FRESH IDEAS.

LET'S GO WITH A WINNER AND LET'S GET THINGS HAPPENING!

STRANGE HEART DEFECTS

Already one million Americans die annually of heart and circulation disease and the number increases yearly. But recently, a team of physicians reported that they have discovered curious heart defects inside the hearts of some patients who die suddenly. They suspect that long heavy use of various tranquilizers might be a cause of the heart damage. The defects appear to be unique and of the types that might affect the heart's electrical conduction system and hence, its rhythm. In the scientific world, the Chiropractic profession has already attained praise for its work with the nerve electrical system of the body. It's a fact that one of the great benefits of Chiropractic care lies in its ability to protect and help the nerve electrical system and heart functioning at top performance. The preventive benefits of Chiropractic care are unmatched in the healing arts world. For good protection, see your doctor of Chiropractic.

Odom announces constable seat

Hugh (Buddy) Odom, 33, has announced his candidacy for the post of District Two constable for Hancock County.

Odom is a maintenance and crane foreman for Baheli Marine and is an auxiliary deputy with the Hancock County Sheriff's Department.

A graduate from Hancock North Central High School, Odom served in the U.S. Army from 1969 to 1971. He spent one year in Vietnam.

Odom lives on Old Kiln Road near the Pearl River County line and is the father of three.

He says, "I live at the end of the county and there's not much law enforcement there or in the Pearl River area."

"If elected, I would be on duty at all times which would help the law enforcement effort in our area," said Odom.

USM Arena Theater schedules French farce

Monsieur Argan, well-known hypochondriac, decides that if his daughter marries a doctor, he will have free medical care, but the rest of the cast of Moliere's "The Imaginary Invalid" attempt to stop him.

This classic 17th century farce will open at 8 p.m. July 23 in the Southern Arena Theatre on the University of Southern Mississippi campus.

Argan (Mike Hill) chooses Thomas Diaforus (Scott Ward) for Angelica (Karen Rice), his daughter, but she is in love with Cleante (Berry Delaney).

Helping true love along is Toinette (Susan Whitenight) the family's saucy servant and Beralde (Bob Ewing), Argan's brother. Beline (Lauren Linn Taylor), Argan's second wife has her own reasons for seeing to it that Angelica marries no one.

All this scheming is set against Moliere's parody of the medical profession as double-taling, behind the times or quite pompous.

The Action is fast paced and in this "comedy brimming with life, all troubles real and imagined are relieved by laughter", according to director Blaine Quarnstrom.

Other dates for the play are July 28, Aug. 2, 5, 10 and 13.

The box office opens July 13 and will be open Monday through Friday thereafter at 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. and from 4-5:30 p.m.

ETV Brief

BOSTON POPS

The Boston Pops Orchestra salutes its conductor, Academy Award-winning John Williams, in the first program of this season's "Evening at Pops" at 7 p.m., Sunday, July 17, on the Mississippi ETV Network.

Some of the program was shot on location at the Old Corner House, home of the Norman Rockwell Museum in Stockbridge, Mass. Included in the hour-long mix of performance and the on-location footage are selections from Williams' well-known movie scores, as well as music by Dukas and Vivaldi, the latter with Williams at the harpsichord.

IS THE DISTRICT ATTORNEY DOING HIS JOB?

A full-time District Attorney should do a full-time job. But right now, the District Attorney only prosecutes cases when they're brought to him by the police.

That's not enough. He's only doing half of the job we elected him to do.

The District Attorney should lead investigations of criminal activity. Not just sit back and only prosecute cases that are already put together by someone else.

"As District Attorney, I'll see to it that all crime is investigated — wherever it exists. And I'll vigorously prosecute those cases once they go to trial."

Let's use all our resources.

"The District Attorney has the resources to investigate crime. As the Chief Law enforcement officer in our three-county area, he has city, county, state and federal law enforcement agencies at his disposal.

"As District Attorney, I'll focus the efforts of all these agencies on crime in our area. Instead of waiting for the federal government to step in and do the job for us."

It's time.

"As your next District Attorney, you can be sure that any federal agents working in our area will be here under my direction — not because I've ignored the problems in our own backyard.

"It's time we had a District Attorney who takes the lead in criminal investigations."

Caranna has the experience.

As a City Attorney for over 10 years, Cono Caranna has prepared himself for the job of District Attorney.

He's worked closely with police. Helping them coordinate investigations. Making sure they built solid cases. Advising them on points of law.

He served as a Commissioner on the Mississippi Bar for three years — elected by the attorneys of Harrison, Hancock and Stone Counties.

He has the knowledge and experience to be our next District Attorney.

Let's elect Cono Caranna.

Cono Caranna is ready to do something about the problems in the District Attorney's office.

Justice.....

of voters since 1970."

"Another reason is a number of people living in the county have had their post office mail routes changed but, they were not changed on our rolls."

"Also people have moved and left no forwarding addresses. Many people are over-age, hospitalized or claiming exemption," Heitzmann continued.

J.V. Ladner, chairman of the Hancock County Election Commission said, "The problem lies with an outdated voter list. Until there is a county-wide reregistration of voters we can't settle the jury problem."

A similar incident occurred in October, 1981 when Circuit Court Judge J. Ruble Griffin had as much difficulty in securing a jury.

At the time he issued an order commanding 17 people who did not appear for jury service as directed by summons to appear in court and show cause why they should not be held in criminal contempt of court.

At the same time Griffin directed the clerk to contact members of the county election commission and asked that they meet with the court concerning purging the voting rolls of the county.

"At that meeting," said Charles Gottschalk, election commission secretary, "Griffin told us that in Harrison County they had taken the names of all the voters that hadn't voted in four years and put them in a separate file so that the jurors would be taken only from the active voters list on the registration book."

"He requested that the Hancock County election commission do the same. The commission complied with his request and set up an inactive voter list," Gottschalk continued.

"Then Harrison County's action was challenged in court and the inactive voters list was abolished in Harrison County," Gottschalk said.

"Hancock County therefore returned the inactive voters to the active list," Gottschalk said, adding, "We tried to do something but couldn't."

"The Hancock County election commission has recognized this problem for a long time and feels that the only corrective action that can be taken is a complete county reregistration."

"Because of the redistricting and the confusion that is being caused because of it, we feel that the best time to plan the reregistration is after the first of the year."

To have a reregistration it has to be approved by the Hancock County Board of Supervisors, and also by the U.S. Attorney General's office.

A member of the jury chosen Tuesday morning said, "They only pay the jurors $15 a day. Now, for a man who works construction and earns $100 to $150 a day it isn't worth it, of course he won't want to come down here." He continued, "Fifteen dollars a day won't even pay for babysitting for a mother who would like to serve but can't because of having small children."

Heitzmann added, "A juror is only allowed 10 cents a mile for travel and that is only for a one-way trip to the courthouse. They are given no meal allowances."

Another member of the jury who asked not to be identified said, "A lot of people haven't come because they don't have confidence in the courts anymore. A jury will find someone guilty and then the judge turns around and lets him out on probation to commit the same crimes again."

The July court term was scheduled to run for four weeks. It will now run for three weeks starting on July 18.

"Sunday clears away the rust of the whole week."

Romantic comedy to open Southern's Arena Theater

The Seventh Southern Arena Theatre season opens July 22 at 8 p.m. with the performance of "Sabrina Fair" by Samuel Taylor.

In this American romantic comedy set in the 1950's, Sabrina Fairchild (Karen Rice), daughter of the chauffeur (Phil Simon) to the rich, Long Island Larrabee family, returns from Paris as a successful government executive. She has returned home to find out if she still loves the man she left behind, David Larrabee (David Stevens).

As the story progresses Sabrina is forced to choose between David and his older brother Linus (Bob Ewing), now in charge of the family fortune while Mr. Larrabee (Mike Hill) spends his time attending funerals.

A number of other interesting characters are also present, the beautiful Mrs. Larrabee (Susan Whitenight), a young Frenchman (Berry Delaney) who travels all the way from Paris to propose to Sabrina and a magazine editor (Dayna Anderson) who observes all the goings on.

The Saturday review called "Sabrina Fair" "The best American comedy of manners in more than a decade." Brooks Atkinson of the New York Times said "A remarkably pleasant piece of theatre... a modern version of the Cinderella fable."

"Sabrina Fair" will also be presented July 27, 30; Aug. 4, 9 and 12.

APPLICATIONS INVITED FOR JUSTICE COURT CLERK HANCOCK COUNTY, MISSISSIPPI

Letters of application and resumes now are being accepted for the position of Justice Court Clerk of Hancock County, Mississippi, to serve the two newly-created Justice Court Districts which become effective January 1, 1984.

Bay police nab five, recover stolen items

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.
The Bay St. Louis Police Department recently arrested five persons and recovered items worth several thousand dollars in connection with local thefts.

CAR THEFT

Police Chief Douglas Williams reports Michael Stringer, 20, of Route 4, Box 564, Bay St. Louis is being held in lieu of $20,000 bond at Hancock County Jail in Bay St. Louis.

Stringer is charged with grand larceny, automobile theft and breaking into and entering a commercial establishment, the chief lists.

Chief Investigator Murray Ladner of the department reports Vickie Poyadou, 21, of 540 deMontluzin St. was released from the jail in the custody of a Bay resident after posting a $5,000 bond.

She is charged with grand larceny and auto theft in the car theft, Ladner says.

Ladner explains the charges stem from the recent theft and recovery of a 1973 car owned by Lottie Eden which was apparently stolen from the corner of DeMontluzin Street and North Beach Boulevard.

Stringer is also charged in the recent theft of some $300 in tools and a vehicle battery from South Central Bell Telephone Co. trucks parked at the utility's Bay station at the corner of St. Francis and St. John Streets, Ladner reports.

The alleged thief also apparently cut an opening in a chain link fence to gain entry to the Bell truck parking yard, Ladner says.

More arrests are expected in the department's ongoing probe of the incidents, the investigator reports.

The two alleged culprits were arrested by Sgt. Tom Pustay of the department who was assisted by members of the Waveland Police Department, Ladner adds.

BURGLARIES, ARSON

A Bay St. Louis man is apparently in the Veterans Administration Hospital in New Orleans for psychological treatment after his release from jail in lieu of $25,000 bond, Ladner says.

Charles (Lucky) Demoran, 28, of 108 South Touline St. in the Bay was recently arrested in connection with an arson and three burglaries and is now in the hospital, Ladner reports.

The investigator says he and Sgt. Joe Pica arrested Demoran for allegedly burglarizing and setting fire to a house at 306 Main St., stealing tools and automotive maintenance equipment from St. Stanislaus High School, and antiques from a 124 State St. residence.

Ladner reports the some $4,000 in stolen items were recovered in the arrest and included the tools, antiques and a lawn mower.

SHOP BREAKIN

A California man is in the jail in lieu of $6,065 bond and facing multiple charges, Ladner reports.

Williams says Frank E. Ringer, 42, of Los Angeles was recently arrested by Pica and Patrolman John Rester.

The chief explained the department received a telephone tip one night that a "suspicious person" was outside Lonnie Necaise's Locksmith Shop in the Bay St. Louis Shopping Center.

"The officers spotted the suspect in bushes near the shop and while questioning him discovered a window was broken out of the business establishment," Williams stated.

Ringer is charged with public drunk, possession of burglary tools and burglary, the chief says.

SHOPLIFTING

A Gulfport man arrested recently on a Bay felony shoplifting charge is in Harrison County Jail in connection with a similar Long Beach crime, Ladner reports.

David L. Stubbs, 20, of 2010 Henderson Ave. was recently arrested by Ladner and charged with grand larceny, Williams says.

The chief explained Stubbs allegedly shoplifted some $400 in clothing from The Sea Chest in Marketown Shopping Center in the Bay.

Stubbs was transferred to the Harrison jail after a $5,000 bond was set here, Ladner reports.

The alleged shoplifter is also wanted by the Gulfport Police Department for not paying a fine there and is serving a 30-day sentence for the evasion, the investigator says.

Ladner adds he was assisted in his investigation by Pica and the Gulfport and Long Beach Police Departments.

Bay native addresses Chamber Morning Edition

By ELLIS CUEVAS

Tish Haas, Bay St. Louis native, a media specialist for the Mississippi Economic Development's Tourism Division, was guest speaker at the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce's Morning Edition Tuesday.

Haas, who now resides in Jackson, told about the $4 million the Mississippi Legislature has earmarked for promoting a World Class Exhibit at the 1984 New Orleans World's Fair.

In her statements, she said, "Hancock Countians have the opportunity of a lifetime with the World's Fair in New Orleans."

"You will benefit from two markets of people. Those going to the World's Fair, and the New Orleans residents trying to get away from the crowds," Ms. Haas stated.

During a slide presentation of the planned 20,000 square foot Mississippi Pavilion, Ms. Haas said the strategic location should mean at least some 5 million visitors for the state's exhibit.

Haas commented, "The mini stages and 160-foot screen will give visitors a view of the great talent and crafts available in Mississippi."

"It will give visitors an opportunity to meet the 'real' people of Mississippi," Haas added.

Haas reported, "It is estimated that Hancock County should realize some $1.53 million in new business in connection with the 1984 fair and this should be a quick fix for the economy."

"This will only be the beginning, as Mississippi should have some 1.4 million new visitors, and this will be an investment for our state, as many will return again," Haas allowed.

Some 65 persons attend the event held at the Landmark Square Restaurant sponsored by the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce and Barbara Kent, Shaklee representative.

L. J. BREAU
HANCOCK COUNTY'S
FIRST RESIDENT SENATOR
IN OVER 20 YEARS

—A PROVEN LEADER — MAKES THINGS HAPPEN

As a Hancock County Dairyman, Breau's business suffered severe damages by Hurricane Camille, yet he was able to rebuild and be named Hancock County's Outstanding Farmer in 1971.

When Breau was hired by the Board of Directors to manage the Gulf Coast Dairyman's Association in Gulfport, membership moral was low, and the company on the verge of closing because of prior poor management, also deep in debt.

Under Breau's management, it wasn't but a short time before moral was up and a tremendous amount of new members joined the organization.

In a short time, the Gulf Coast Dairyman's Association purchased a plot of land, constructed a new office building, and a Grade A Milk Transfer Station under Breau's leadership.

The company was able to market milk as far away as Tampa, Florida, not only from coastal dairymen, but also from the states of Louisiana and Alabama, in addition to the whole state of Mississippi. In only three years the local company was doing some $8,000,000 annually under Breau's leadership, and out of debt.

Under Breau's management, the Gulf Coast Dairyman's Association became one of the nation's most respected small co-ops. Breau even testified before Congressional Committees in Washington, D.C. on behalf of dairymen.

Breau managed the co-op for eight years. Today it is still one of the nation's most progressive, continuing to grow from the strong foundation of leadership and sense of direction given by Breau.

Breau's leadership was recognized by the Marketing and Economic experts of Mississippi, Louisiana and Alabama, and he became a charter member of the Mississippi Agricultural Economic Association.

Holston seeking state representative position

Curtis Holston, 44, announces his candidacy for Mississippi State Representative, District 106, which includes Pearl River, Stone, Standard, Crane Creek, Leetown, Flat Top, Hancock, and Harrison Counties.

Holston is a graduate of Poplarville High School and attended the University of Mississippi. He received a bachelor of science degree from McNeese State University, Lake Charles, La. in 1964.

A native Mississippian, he was born and reared in Pearl River County. His parents are the late Curtis Holston Sr. and Verna Amacker Holston.

Holston and his wife, the former Ginger Greer, have three children, Vicki, Johnny and Sam.

He is a member of the First Baptist Church of Poplarville and he and his family are active in church, civic and fraternal affairs.

From 1964 to 1979 Holston was employed by Shell Oil Company in the exploration and production of petroleum in Louisiana, Texas and Mississippi. He is currently a consultant for Masoner Petroleum Consulting Firm in Poplarville.

Holston says, "The State Legislature makes decisions that affect your property, educational, recreational and health institutions. Laws concerning industry, businesses, finances of the state and legal problems of our judicial system concern all citizens. As your representative, I would work diligently with these problems."

"As a land owner and farmer, the preservation of our natural resources is also important to me. Farming has been part of my heritage since my ancestors settled Mississippi in 1833. I will support legislation that will be beneficial to Agri-business."

"The State of Mississippi has provided educational opportunities for five generations of my family. I am grateful for this service. The teachers of Mississippi deserve to be paid at least the Southeastern average pay and receive the same benefits as state employees," Holston added.

"Recognizing the educational contributions of public libraries to all age groups, I will continue support to these institutions."

"For thirty years, I have enjoyed hunting and fishing privileges in our area. I will actively support legislation that will continue this recreational activity and preserve the wildlife for future generations," Holston continued.

"The problems of industry, business, state employees and private citizens concern me enough to campaign for representative. Join with me to improve Mississippi and District 106."

Education Department wins television information award

The State Department of Education has won a national award for a series of television public service announcements it released recently.

The department received an Award of Distinction for Educational Communications from the National Association of State Education Department Information Officers.

The series of psa's is based on the theme "When You Look At The Facts, You Can See What's Right with Education in Mississippi."

The seven spots present factual information about a variety of subjects including a comparison of today's public education with that of the early 1950's.

This is the first time the SDE has received national honors for its work in the broadcast field. The series has been sent to all television stations in Mississippi and the audio from the spots has been distributed to all radio stations. Production work on the series was done by Broadcast Services at the University of Southern Mississippi.

ELECT

JAMES H. (Jimmy)
THORNTON
SUPERVISOR
DISTRICT ONE
HANCOCK COUNTY

I would like to announce my Political Platform as a candidate for Board of Supervisor of District One.

ROADS: The county has X amount of dollars for material to black top or gravel our roads. As supervisor I plan to black top as many as funds will allow, starting with the most needy (most traveled and used by children who ride school buses) and to gravel as many others as possible.

DRAINAGE: Approximately 99% of the ditches in Beat One need to be cleaned and in some places even re-dug and once this is done not wait 3 or 4 years to do it again, but maintain them on a regular basis. If a culvert is stopped up, clean it, and if necessary, replace it. How else can you get water to drain?

BEACHES: A commission has recently been formed to acquire federal funding to repump our sand beaches. In my opinion this commission should have been put together years ago. Camille was the biggest destructor to the beach and it has been deteriorating ever since. As your next Supervisor I will help in every way possible to speed up this program and when it is accomplished, I will personally see that our beach is maintained on a regular basis.

SIGNS: Initiate a program for installing road and street signs throughout our district to better aid our police, Mobile Medic, and fire department units, in reaching a person in distress. I am sure that there are not enough funds to do this all at one time, but if we do even 10, 20 or 30 signs per year, it will eventually be 100% complete. But if we do not even make an effort it will never become a reality.

JOB: I believe it to be outrageous and costly for our fellow neighbors to have to travel for employment. (I have done this for some 12 to 13 years). Hancock County has great potential to bring industrial, commercial and residential work to this area. We have the Port and Harbor site, NASA, the new ammunition plant, and our soon to be beautiful beaches to add to our already one of a kind Gulf Coast.

★ These are just some of the programs and new ideas that as your next full-time Supervisor I will be working toward. I also want you, the people of District One to know that I welcome all comments and suggestions that may also further the progress of Hancock County. I believe that by visiting with the local civic groups I can learn first-hand what the particular problems are that face each community.

BACKGROUND: I work for Landis Construction Company, located in New Orleans, Louisiana.

I began there as a laborer with a shovel in my hands. Since then I have been a time keeper, handling business transmittals ordering and delivering of material and payroll. My next step was carpenter, carpenter foreman, general carpenter foreman, and now assistant superintendent.

The jobs that I have been affiliated with as assistant superintendent usually last 14 to 20 months, and range between 6 to 16 million dollars. We've always finished the jobs ahead of schedule, and with money left over. I never see the actual dollar bill but with my signature alone, I have the authority to order and buy whatever material is needed for the job.

This is just to show you what confidence and trust this company has in me, and I hope to win the same trust and confidence from you, the people of Beat One, Hancock County.

I also acquired an associates in science degree in building technology and safety. This was done by working days and attending school at night for 3½ years maintaining a 3.5 average.

I feel my work record shows that I have the Education and the Ability to lead men and also that I am not afraid to accept a new challenge.

Federal study shows I-10 adds additional two feet to Pearl flooding

The effect of the I-10 crossing of the Pearl River on flood elevations during the April 1980 flood has been determined, according to a recent report released by the U.S. Geological Survey, Department of the Interior.

The 60-page report includes detailed maps illustrating the changes in water-surface elevations and flow distribution caused by I-10 during the April 1980 flood of 174,000 cubic feet per second.

The report describes the application of a computer model to determine the effect of I-10 on flood elevations and flow distribution both upstream and downstream from the highway.

The report was prepared in cooperation with the Louisiana Department of Transportation and Development, Office of Highways, and the U.S. Department of Transportation, Federal Highway Administration.

The Louisiana Department of Transportation and Development is using the results as a basis for selecting for further study possible modifications of the I-10 crossing.

Jonathan K. Lee, Geological Survey hydrologist and senior author of the report, said: "The April 1980 flood was chosen for study because it is the largest flood known to have occurred in the area before 1983 and is just slightly greater than a 50-year design flood."

"The computer model showed that I-10 caused maximum backwater, or a maximum increase in water-surface elevation, of 2.1 feet on the north side of the I-10 embankment between the Middle and West Pearl Rivers."

"Maximum backwater at the east edge of the flood plain was 1.1 feet near Napoleon, and maximum backwater at the west edge of the flood plain was 1.5 feet near Crawford Landing," Lee said.

"Backwater ranging from 0.2 to 0.6 foot extended more than a mile downstream from the Pearl River bridge opening in I-10 at the east edge of the flood plain, and drawdown of 0.2 to 0.3 foot occurred along approximately 2 miles of the west edge of the flood plain downstream from I-10."

"In addition," Lee added, "the model showed that, with I-10 in place, the flow shifts from the west side of the flood plain to the east side farther upstream than without the roadway in place."

Copies of the report, "A Two-Dimensional Finite-Element Model Study of Backwater and Flow Distribution at the I-10 Crossing of the Pearl River near Slidell, La.," Geological Survey Water-Resources Investigations Report 82-4119, by J.K. Lee, D.C. Froehlich, J.J. Gilbert, and G.J. Wiche, are available for inspection at the Geological Survey's Louisiana District office at Baton Rouge, La.

The report may be purchased at cost from the U.S. Geological Survey, Open-File Services Section, P. O. Box 25425, Federal Center, Denver, CO 80225.

Wells

Wells of this type are usually drilled no closer than 990 feet from any unit line, she added.

Regarding the other proposed unit, Moody noted it includes land in Sections 20, 28 and 29.

She said the well proposed in that section will be named W.J. Gex No. 2 and also drilled to a depth of 12,000 feet.

The proposed drilling venture location is 250 feet from the south line of Section 20 and 1,200 feet from the west line of that section, Moody reported.

She noted the rectangular section only includes the extreme northwest corner of Section 28 which is the result of uneven sized sections in that area.

Most of the unit is in the south half of Section 20 and north half of Section 29, she added.

Both gas units are located near or include state-claimed wetlands which were the subject of a State Bureau of Marine Resources hearing last week regarding a change requested by the department of natural resources to the Coastal Wetlands Use Plan to allow oil and gas exploration in the area.

Moody explained 320-acre gas units are allowed for wells drilled within 12,000 feet of the surface, deeper wells must be drilled in 640-acre units and 80 acres is required for a well which will only produce oil.

JOURDAN RIVER LEASING

The State Department of Natural Resources Bureau of Geology Mineral Lease Division in Jackson is receiving bids to lease state-claimed wetlands in three Hancock sections which include a large portion of Jourdan River west of Hwy. 603.

John Kellis, Mineral Lease Division Chief, said recently that the state is advertising to again lease 95.44-acres in Sections 34, 35 and 36 at Township 7 South, Range 15 West.

He noted the state's three-year lease with Saga Petroleum Co. USA of Houston, Tex. involving the same area expired three years ago, but he did not know the terms of the old agreement because he did not head that division at that time.

Saga is a co-defendant with the state in the ongoing Cinque Bambini Partnership vs. Mississippi land dispute suit in which the Hancock County firm, local landowners and Phillips Petroleum Co. of Houston are appealing a Hancock Chancery Court ruling in State Supreme Court.

Kellis also did not know the location of the state-owned land in those sections.

Jerry Mitchell, BMR Coastal Program Division chief, this week in Long Beach said he did not know exactly where the state ownership lines are in that area and no map delineating that area is available.

He said since that area of the river is not included in the wetland use area, that no hearing was necessary regarding the original lease.

The state's legal advertisement seeking lease bids is on Page 7A. Hancock Chancery Clerk records show Mississippi's 1977 lease for the same area listed the state owned lands subject to the ebb and flow of the tide and which are below the water-mark of ordinary mean high tide (both tidal lands and submerged lands)...

Former Gov. Cliff Finch signed the lease on Aug. 19, 1977 with Saga for $38,854 (about $407 for each mineral acre) plus a one-fourth royalty on 'only' oil and gas production and $2 per long ton royalty on sulphur, chancery clerk records show.

Kellis said the state is seeking a bid based on the same terms of the 1977 lease.

Man killed in family spat

By ELLIS CUEVAS

A domestic quarrel early Sunday morning led to a murder charge being filed against a Dedeaux Community resident, according to Hancock County Sheriff Ronald Peterson.

Peterson said, "In an arraignment held before John Chevis, Hancock County Justice Court judge, on Tuesday morning, Hurley S. Ladner, 32, Rt. 1, Box 800, Pass Christian, was charged with murder in connection with the shooting death of Dale Page, his father-in-law of Harrison County. Bond was set at $50,000 on Ladner."

"Our investigation has revealed that Ladner and his wife apparently had an argument early Sunday morning. She then left and went to her father's residence. Her father returned with her at around 7 a.m. to retrieve her clothing," Peterson stated.

"Another quarrel then developed, and Ladner allegedly shot Page twice with an AR15 rifle," Peterson said.

Page was pronounced dead at the scene, with Carl Banderet, Hancock County coroner, holding an inquest, Delbert Seay, Hancock investigator, said.

The case which is still under investigation is being handled by Peterson, Seay, with assistance from Nathan Hoda and David Garcia, Hancock deputies, and Ronald Garcia, Hancock auxiliary deputy.

Champs head for McComb in pursuit of state title

By JUNE M. HEYDT

The Babe Ruth Division Six 13-year-old champions are on their way to McComb to make a try for the state championship title.

The tournament starts Saturday.

These champs may have lost their first game to Bayou View but, once they got under way there was no beating them.

They came back to play Bayou View twice and won both times.

Their first game with Bayou View was lost 11-10. The second time of playing with Bayou View it was a 6-5 victory and the last game between BV was 11-5.

The team won over Long Beach with a score of 16-5. Orange Grove, the last game played was won with a score of 19-2.

Outstanding hitters on the team are, Troy Haynes, Mike Weems, Monty Strong, Louis Schruoff, Johnny Robinson, Quentin Bell, Lawrence Thomas, and Nate Bernard.

Outstanding pitchers are, Mike Weems, Lawrence Thomas, Chris Bartman, Nate Bernard, and Louis Schruoff.

The Babe Ruth District Six

14 and 15-year-olds will start their tournament this Saturday at 4 p.m. when they will play the winner out of Long Beach.

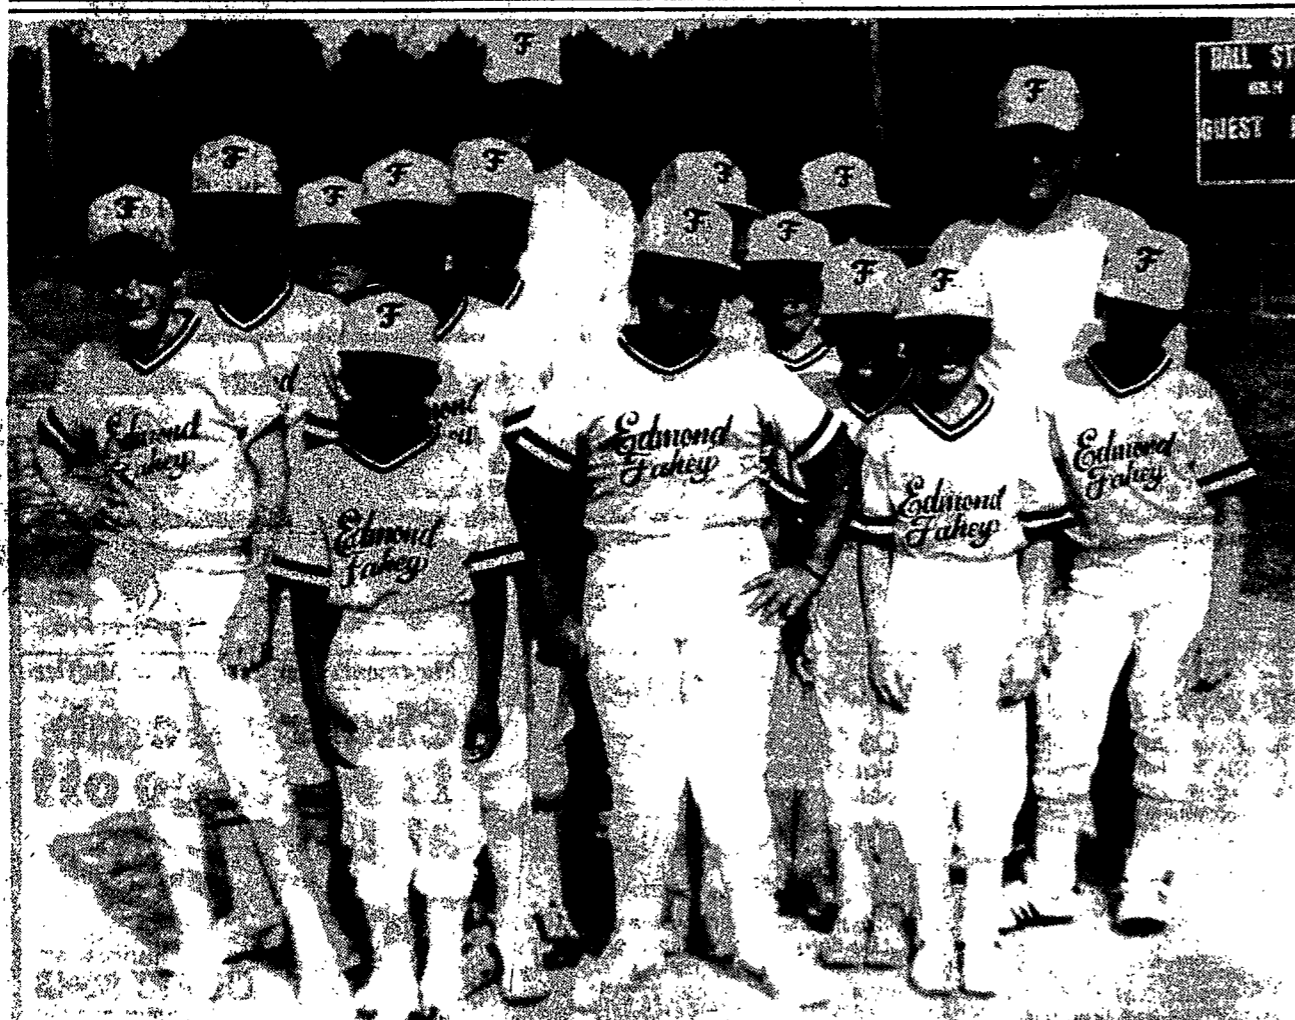

The manager said, "We have a team of champions and I think we'll do real well this year."

The team will play Long Beach, Orange Grove, Bayou View, and Gulfport Central.

Bay soccer group hosting mini-camp

Bay Area Youth Soccer organization is hosting a Star soccer mini-camp during the week of July 25-29 for children ages 6-18.

The mini-camp will be conducted at the St. Augustine Seminary field and will consist of three hours per day of instruction in soccer skills and techniques.

The registration fee is $42 for the week of 15 hours of instruction, and each participant will receive a ball and a shirt.

"This is an excellent opportunity for our youth to acquire additional skills and get a jump on the regular soccer season in the Fall," said Frank Gray, BAYS spokesman.

Younger players ages 6-10 will meet in the morning from 9 a.m. to noon and older players will meet in the afternoon from 1 to 4 p.m.

"Sign up early so Star will have sufficient coaches, balls and shirts for everyone," Gray added.

Contact Joann Duncan at 533-7981 for further information and registration forms, or pickup forms at Waveland Small Animal Hospital on US-90.

"Let's support BAYS by having our youth attend this Star camp and, thus, improve our caliber of play in the Bay Area, Gray urged.

Soccer season divided for learning

At a recent board of directors meeting for Bay Area Youth Soccer, initial planning for the 1983-84 season was begun.

Division commissioners assigned include Under 8—Gary Grimes; Under 10—Kathy Edwards; Under 12—Paul Raymond; Under 14—Tom Minton; Girls—Joann Duncan.

These commissioners are looking now for people who are willing to serve as coaches and assistant coaches. For those with little or no experience, but who wish to work with the youth, there will be coaching clinics available and the assistance of the more experienced coaches. "It's a wonderful opportunity to learn this exciting game while helping our youth," said Tom Demboski, league president.

OLG-1 leads

In the Bay Area Church Softball League action last Thursday, OLG-2 earned second place with a victory over the Episcopalists.

The victory clinched at least a tie, but since OLG-2 holds a 2-1 season edge over the Episcopalists, OLG-2 gets the nod.

In other action, OLG-1 clinched a tie for first place by downing the Methodists.

Tuesday, OLG-1 clinched first place with a win over OLG-2, while the Episcopalists downed the Baptists in the early game. The final League standings going into the tournament are:

Name	W	L	GB
OLG-1	10	1	-
OLG-2	7	4	3

Episcopalists	6	5	4
Methodists	4	8	6½
Baptist	1	10	9

The League double-elimination tournament starts this evening with the Methodist playing OLG-2 at 7 p.m. and the Episcopalists against the Baptist at 8:30 p.m.

Next Tuesday the winner of the Episcopal-Baptist game will play OLG-1 in the early game, and the two losing teams from Thursday will play each other in the nightcap.

OLG-1 is favored in the tournament, but OLG-2 and the Episcopalists have an outside chance with the Methodists as the dark horse.

Registration for the 1983-84 season will begin the week of Aug. 22, and the Fall season will begin on Oct. 15 and end on Nov. 19.

The Fall season will be a "fun" season, giving the teams time to learn the game and to obtain playing experience.

The Spring season, which will be a competitive season in that these games will count toward determining which teams will play in the post-season Playdowns, will begin on Feb. 18 and end with the state tournament in May.

There will be a second registration drive in early February for those youth who did not play in the Fall, although new registrations will be accepted at any time.

Marc Eagan qualifies for Mallory Cup finals

Marc Eagan of Bay-Waveland Yacht Club and his crew Corky Hadden and Doug Samsone won the Mallory Semi-finals in Jacksonville, Fla. this past weekend.

There were six boats competing from this district which are now eligible for the Mallory Finals to be sailed in Newport Beach, Calif. September 4-9.

Eagan's victory marks the first time that any skipper from BWYC has ever qualified for this National Men's Championship.

Eagan will compete in the Etchells 22 boat.

FLIP AND SKIP FOR HEAVY COVER BASS

Two techniques for fishing the plastic worm that we're using now on the pro circuits are "flippin'" and "skippin'".

Flippin' is the use of a long rod on which the bait is swung (not cast) with a pendulum motion on a short amount of line. Hold the rod in the right hand and swing the lure toward a likely spot. Meanwhile, you hold some slack line in the other hand and feed it through the first rod guide to control the amount of line that really lower the boom when a fish hits. Big fish can break you off easily in the heavy cover, so

CASTIN' ABOUT

by Ron Shearer, the Red Man Fisherman
Three Time National Champion and World Record Holder for The Largest Daily Tournament Catch is out and control the worm as it swings toward the target.

Flippin' works well in heavy cover because you can use 25 or 30-pound line and hose out the big fish.

Skippin' is a technique I developed which allows the fisherman to back further away from the cover than is possible with flippin'. Naturally, I'll be doing it while fishing along the Red Man Tournament Trail.

Often, fish are too spooky or the water too clear for flippin', so we can turn to skippin'. This calls for a seven-foot, six-inch spinning rod, like the one I designed for sidearm casting.

I've won about 30 tournaments on Kentucky Lake, my home waters, by skippin' around buckbrush that lines the banks. What this amounts to is using a two-handed, golf-type swing that lets me throw a worm low over the water, actually skipping when it hits the surface. The worm literally will skip under and into bushes and other flooded cover, going into places you can't reach with a regular cast.

Once the bait is inside the cover, I work it out to the edge fairly quickly, then slow it down; I sometimes jig it up and down there if the line is over a limb. A lot of strikes come right at the edge of the cover. Fish will follow the worm from the inside.

I like to use 17- or 20-pound line and a strong, stainless steel Eagle Claw hook for this technique. This enables me to

Gentle bat unprotected, endangered

True or False: Bats are vicious, filthy and disease-ridden mammals that attack humans.

In fact, bats — the only flying mammals — are gentle, intelligent and frequently beneficial animals, according to this month's 'International Wildlife,' the bimonthly publication of the National Wildlife Federation.

Sensational stories often portray bats as aggressive flying monsters that charge at people and transmit deadly diseases. Bats are actually meticulously clean and seldom spread disease or parasites to humans.

Despite exaggerated claims, fewer than one half of one percent of bats ever contract rabies, according to International Wildlife, and only 10 people in the United States and Canada have died of disease from bats in more than 30 years — far less than the number of people killed by dog attacks.

Bats are also gentle and sociable when it comes to rearing their offspring. Most expectant bat mothers join nursery colonies where hundreds or even millions of them congregate to raise their young.

While the mothers help each other with child-rearing chores, each individual recognizes and protects her own offspring.

Fathers, in the meantime, cooperate by simply leaving the colony, reducing competition for limited food at the site.

Among bat species that live in small groups, however, males may help with rearing the young, and bring food home to their mates.

Home for bats is usually a cave, though many also roost in animal burrows, termite and bird nests, unfurling banana leaves, bamboo stalks, or even spider webs.

Several make their own homes by cutting palm fronds or other leaves to make "tents."

Most bats migrate in the spring and fall to find suitable hibernating caves or warmer climates, often traveling up to a thousand miles one way. When researchers have deliberately moved bats hundreds of miles, they've discovered that bats find their way home.

Guiding bats through the air is a complex navigational system with sonar more sophisticated than man can comprehend, according to International Wildlife.

What we do know is that bats produce rapid pulses of sound at rates ranging from 20 to more than 500 per second, using sonar to perceive motion, distance, speed, trajectory, shape, texture and size — enabling them to detect and avoid obstacles as thin as a human hair or as small as a mosquito.

Because of their intricate sonar, bats are exceptionally long-lived and disease-resistant, making them extremely valuable in scientific research.

Studies on bats, for example, have contributed to development of navigational aids for the blind, new vaccines, artificial insemination and birth control methods, drug testing, and studies of aging and space biology.

Bats are also major pollinators of 130 varieties of tropical plants, and the fruit-eating species are nature's most important seed-dispersing animals.

Included on the long list of fruits, nuts and derivatives from bat-adapted plants are peaches, bananas, avocados, cashews, mangoes and figs.

Despite their obvious value, bats are relentlessly persecuted, and many of their populations are extremely low, according to International Wildlife. Scare stories about bats frighten people into attempting dangerous solutions to minor or nonexistent problems.

When people fear bats in their homes, for instance, they may needlessly spray with toxic pesticides — threatening both humans and bats.

Acting out of fear, people also close cave entrances — eliminating suitable habitat for as many as a million bats in one cave.

Though bats are often protected under state game laws, those laws are seldom enforced, and survival of these valuable mammals depends upon prompt education of the public.

FISHIN' TIPS

from... Tom Mann

QUESTIONS FROM THE MAIL BAG

DEAR TOM MANN: I read a lot of stuff about most other fish but I need crappie tips. Got any? Minor Dinker

HI DUNKER: Well, you got the right name because the number one crappie catcher is a lively minnow. And my next choice is a white jelly crab. 1 32nd ounce, chunked near a brush pile and twitched back in just over bottom.

DADGUMMI TOM: I'm mad as an old wet settin' hen. My expensive tackle box is useless because plastic worms gummed it up so badly. How can I prevent this happening again? Mad Wormer

HELLO MAD: Before you buy another tackle box, read the data with it to make sure it is impervious to plastic worms like the ones Plano makes. Also, keep your soft plastics, like worms, away from hard plastics, like plugs. They don't get along together.

DEARTOM: Now that it's winter they have dropped our lake level again. Where have all the bass gone? Joe Entag

HI JOE: If you were catching bass at, say, the 18-foot level before the drop, and the water temperature hasn't changed, look for them at the same depth off the same points, only farther out.

HOWDY TOM: Where can I get a map showing the bottom contours of my pet impoundment? Happy Looker

HOWDY HAPPY: Chances are your city engineer can provide one, or it is a Corps of Engineers lake, see the superintendent.

WATERSKIING FOR ALL

How many times have you watched water skiers having fun and wished that you could join them? Perhaps it was a slalom skier sending a curl of spray high into the air as he leaned back and sliced across the water. Or maybe a pair of youngsters made your heart race watching them jump wakes and criss-cross behind a tow boat.

Hints from animal friends: flap ears, climb trees to keep cool

How do animals beat the heat?

By doing anything from wallowing in mud to climbing a tree, according to this month's issue of Ranger Rick, the children's publication of the National Wildlife Federation.

When the temperature soars and the sun sizzles, here's how some animals keep their cool:

quickly from the animals body into the air.

The laughing gull pants like a dog and fluffs out its feathers to let its body heat escape.

Because the cougar hunts and eats in the cool of the night, he sleeps all day; the hotter it gets, the more his body stretches out, and the more he stretches, the more he escapes from his body.

This bear cub keeps cool in a tree mud until its body is coated, and then cools off as the water in the mud evaporates.

By climbing a tree, the brown bear cub is cooled by the passing breezes, which also blow away black flies and mosquitoes that add to the misery of summer's heat.

Snoozing on the beach in the hot sun, the elephant seal stays cool as it molts, or loses patches of hair and skin. It then protects and cools its tender new skin by flipping damp sand all over its body.

Almost like hibernating, Australia's cyclorana frog digs underground to escape the heat, wraps itself in a cellophane-like sac made of old skin, and stays there until cool rains fall — sometimes for more than a year.

Both the fennec fox and the elephant flap their huge ears to cool off. The bigger the ears, the more blood vessels there are lying close to the skin; heat from the warm blood flowing through these blood vessels then passes

About Movie Cameras . . .

Q: I would like to buy a new movie camera and hope you can advise me. Since I can't buy the "best," I would like to know what you consider a good camera, preferably American made. I've had a Kodak Super 8 and want to do better than that, as I think it was their cheapest model. Any help would be greatly appreciated.

B. B., Silver Spring, MD

A: There are a number of quality models on the market in the moderate price range. In the Super 8 Silent line, check out Bauer's C-14XL ($270 list), Bell & Howell's Microstar Z ($219.95), Chinon's 213PXL ($160) and 313PXL ($190), and Kodak's XL342 ($224.50), all with zoom lenses.

In the Super 8 Sound line, look into Bell & Howell's MS30 ($299.95 list), Chinon's 10XL ($285) and 20XL ($325), Eumig's 33XL ($397.50) and XL-Sound 64 ($435), Sankyo's XL-220 ($309), and XL-320 ($383), and Yashica's 50XL Macro ($530).

The only American camera companies are Kodak and Bell & Howell (from the above list). But all the above manufacturers maintain wide networks of American authorized repair centers, should the need for repairs arise.

Q: I'm a little confused. I have an automatic-exposure 35 mm SLR camera which can also be operated in the manual-exposure range. It takes good pictures on automatic, but I thought it would be a good idea to learn to use the manual settings, as well.

I understand that, in order to get the right exposure, you have to have the right combination of shutter speed and lens aperture. And I know that the faster the shutter speed, the better the chances for stopping moving subjects and getting sharp photos. But how about the aperture setting? My lens can be set at f/1.4, f/2, f/2.8, f/4, f/5.6, f/8, f/11, f/16, and f/22. What I don't understand is what difference it makes. Will my photos look any differently if I shoot them at f/2 instead of f/22? As long as the shutter speed is adjusted for a proper exposure, why worry about apertures?

G. D., Milwaukee, WI

A: That's a good question . . . and one I suspect a lot of amateur photographers might be interested in. Actually, the lens aperture you select is—or should be—dependent upon a couple of factors. First, when shooting in low light without flash, you'll want to select a wide aperture (like f/2.8, f/2, or f/1.4). A wide aperture, or lens opening, will let in more light than a narrow aperture, like f/16 or f/22. Also, the wider the aperture you select, the faster the proper shutter speed will be for a correct exposure. Your meter may tell you that at f/2.8, you need a shutter speed of 1/15 second for a proper exposure. At f/2, the speed increases to 1/30 second. At f/1.4, the speed goes up to 1/60 second—fast enough to allow you to shoot most subjects handheld.

Lens aperture plays another role, however. It affects depth-of-field—the area of sharp focus in front of and beyond the subject on which you focus. If you want the subject and a good portion of the background or foreground in focus, select a small lens aperture, like f/16 or f/22. That will give you great depth-of-field. If you want the subject but not the background or foreground in focus, select a large lens aperture, like f/2 or f/1.4. That will produce a small depth-of-field, ideal for blurring out busy or distracting backgrounds. Remember, though, that depth-of-field is also affected by the focal length of your lens (the longer the lens, the shallower the depth-of-field) and your distance from the subject (the closer you are, the shallower the depth-of-field, and vice-versa).

CANCER Answerline

SOCIETY

QUESTION: Does cigarette smoking interfere with the body's immune system?

ANSWERline: Yes, according to researchers at Harvard University, Massachusetts General Hospital, and a leading pharmaceutical firm. The researchers analyzed circulating T-cells which play an important part in controlling the body's ability to ward off cancer and other diseases. They studied the T-cells in heavy smokers and in nonsmokers. They found irregularities in the T-cell functions of heavy smokers that suggested their immune response was undermined and might lead to tumor growth. On the other hand they found that the irregularities disappeared in the heavy smokers six weeks after they stopped smoking.

FIRST AID AT YOUR FINGERTIPS

The practice of putting finger pressure at one or more of 115 pairs of G-Jo points on the body in order to disrupt pain signals through the nervous system is a technique which originated in the Orient thousands of years ago. There are only two vital rules for using G-Jo, both of which can easily be mastered with a little practice.

The first is to find the right pressure point. The specific spots may be a little difficult to locate at first, and you must use the tip of your thumb or forefinger to probe the area as deeply as you can. You'll know when you've hit a pressure point though: It will announce itself with a twinge of sensitivity much like that associated with a pinched nerve or a toothache.

The second requirement is to stimulate the pressure point properly. Massage the spot with a digging, gliding motion... again, using the tip of the thumb or forefinger. Usually, 10 or 15 seconds of treatment is enough to unlock the right control point and relieve the problem completely or at least to ease substantially the discomfort. If the symptom returns, simply restimulate the point.

The primary G-Jo point to control problems of the head and neck is G-Jo No. 13. To locate this spot, push your left thumb and forefinger together until the fleshy mound appears between them on the top of the hand. Place the tip of your right thumb on top of the mound, then relax your left hand, keeping your right thumb in place. Now, reach beneath the webbing with your right index finger and place it in the left palm, make a pincher, and probe deeply with the tip of your thumb. You should immediately feel the characteristic twinge. (When using this or any G-Jo point, it makes no difference which side of the body you begin with... just be sure to stimulate both identically.)

Another major pressure point—G-Jo No. 4—can be found approximately two inches above the most prominent crease of your wrist on the upper side of the forearm, in line with the middle finger, in a protected hollow between the lower arm bones. G-Jo No. 4 influences the hand, arm, and shoulder. Therefore, it's very effective in alleviating the pain of tennis elbow or tension in the neck and shoulders, as well as symptoms of hypoglycemia.

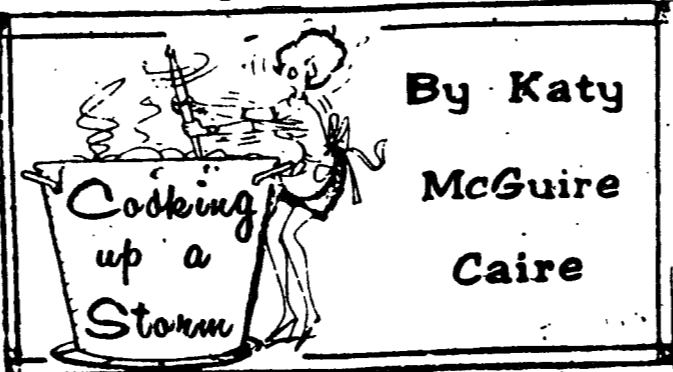

G-Jo No. 10 is a pressure spot that's sometimes taught in Western first aid courses as a means to control bleeding. The point is located directly beneath G-Jo No. 4 between the tendons on the underside of the lower forearm, in line with the middle finger. This is an important point for treating such diverse problems as menstrual cramps, seasickness, and hiccups... but its primary use is to control asthma and other problems of the chest area.

To locate G-Jo No. 7, simply measure the width of one hand directly above the bulge of the inner ankle. The tiny point lies just behind and almost touches the shinbone. It's actually between the shin and the calf. This spot is used to ease menstrual distress, nausea, and indigestion.

G-Jo No. 5 can be of special aid to lower back-pain sufferers. To locate it, simply probe the area behind the bulge of the outer ankle, just in front of the Achilles tendon. The point is found in the hollow—or soft, valleylike area—there, though it may be a little off-center.

Except in emergencies, it's best to wait about four hours after taking any drugs, medication, or alcohol to use G-Jo. And give yourself about half an hour after a hot bath, a full meal, or physical work or exercise. Also, pregnant women and folks who suffer chronic heart problems should shun regular use of acupressure.

Real men Do eat quiche, irrespective of recent frivolous writings to the contrary...all the men in our family, from the elder son to the youngest grandson the latter all of six years old, not only devour quiche—some of them are even expert at cooking this rich, savory, spicy custardy sort of pie, sort of tart, a legacy from the French countryside.

And then, again, perhaps not. Most food experts claim that the quiche (keesh) originated in the province of Lorraine, France...as the housewife's tasty, economical answer to budget demands, what with the abundance of eggs and cream and such readily at hand.

Others with equal vehemence insist that this tart or pie belongs to German cuisine, known as "kuchen" from which "kiche," then "quiche" might easily have come. Whatever, and wherever, every country and cuisine, I suppose, has its version of this custardy concoction.

I well remember the first time I encountered Quiche Lorraine on an elegant French menu...and my surprise at finding it just another, though delicious version of our family cook's tried and true "onion cheese pie."

Long ago, the quiche was made with bread dough, then some resourceful cook or other substituted crisp pastry or a pie shell for the bread. Though sweet versions are known, the true quiche is usually more of a supper or luncheon dish, or appetizer than a sweet.

And, quickly made and cut into small bite-size portions, it's the answer for cocktail or teatime. It is delicious served straight from the oven, or cooled to room temperature, or even the next day...if there's any left.

There are many variations of the original quiche...which, by the way, was made without cheese or with fresh cream cheese substituted for the cream.

Nowadays, you're likely to find all sorts of things in a quiche...ham, seafood, musrooms, whatever's on hand...that's the secret of good eating without going "broke." And, for an economical, elegant, tasty quiche, try:

GLORIA DIFFERENT'S SPINACH AND CHEESE PIE
1 10-oz. package fresh spinach, cooked, chopped and drained well
2 eggs
1 cup canned milk
1 and 2/3 cups shredded parmesan cheese

1 6-oz. can pitted ripe olives, sliced and well drained
1 large onion, sliced and sauteed
1/2 tsp. nutmeg
4 drops or splashes hot pepper sauce
pepper, cayenne, salt to taste

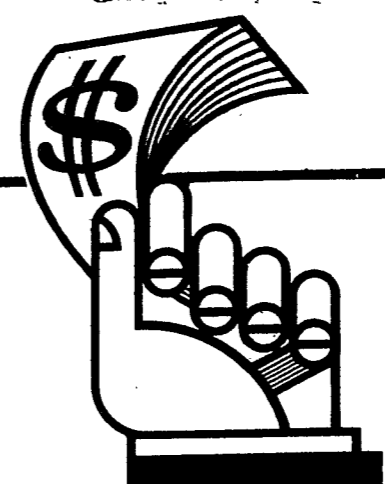

1 8-inch pie shell
Combine all ingredients and pour into pie shell. Bake for a half-hour at 350°, or until center is set. (Serves six.)

When I made this yesterday, the only parmesan on hand was grated, so I added Swiss cheese to make up the quantity; I only had chopped or whole olives on hand, and was too lazy or busy to slice 'em, so I used the chopped...and Joyce and Sally, who were on hand to taste, pronounced it "excellent."

Oh, I almost forgot to tell you—I didn't have any fresh spinach on hand either—so I quickly cooked a (12 oz.) package of frozen, chopped spinach, and drained and squeezed it to get all the liquid out, and it worked fine. After all, I see no particular virtue in working and rinsing all that sand out of fresh spinach unless I'm making fresh spinach salad, do you?

County Agent's Notes

By John Smith

Buying Pesticides

Buying and selling materials to control household and crop pests is becoming more complicated as new materials are offered on the market and stricter controls are imposed by state and federal agencies.

Safe and proper use of these pesticides is necessary if we are to maintain a plentiful food supply and continue to enjoy a high level of public health.

A person who sells pesticides is in a rather unique and vulnerable position. Whether he sells to a large grower, the backyard gardener or housewife, he must face the fact that he is putting a poison in the hands of the public. He must make sure the right material is sold to prevent a possible accident.

Good pesticide dealers understand this. They know a buyer will come again if he knows the dealer is interested in the health and welfare of the customer as well as selling the right pesticide for the job.

When you buy pesticides, consider these points:
—Large packages are usually cheaper on a per pound basis, but left-over pesticides may cause a storage problem. A short shelf life causes waste and increases costs.

—Dusts are usually more expensive than wettable powders or concentrated solutions, but they are also more convenient to use.

—Aerosols are usually the most expensive form. But, the convenience may be worth the price.

Contact the County Extension Office for more information about using pesticides in crops, homes and gardens.

Control Weeds For Profits
Nobody needs reminding that weeds hurt yields, slow harvest and lower soybean quality. Still, weeds are the leading soybean pest in Mississippi and in Hancock County. The key to stopping weeds is early control.

Perhaps the biggest reason weeds cut yields is the late timing of post-emergence herbicide applications on broadleaf weeds like cockbur and others. It's a proven fact that you must have most weeds under control within four weeks after emergence or yields will suffer.

Using research figures and an example of a 40-bushel yield potential, an infestation of five weeds per 20 feet of row reduces yields by two bushels per acre in four weeks, 4.4

bushels after six weeks and nearly seven bushels after eight weeks. Even if the weeds were then killed at eight weeks, the yield has dropped from 40 bushels potential to only 33 bushels.

These figures show why you must kill weeds early to stop yield loss. For more information on controlling weeds in crops, contact the Office.

ASCS Report

PROGRAMS EFFECT

"The Acreage Reduction, Paid Diversion, and Payment-in-Kind (PIK) program will probably have as much effect of farm operation in Mississippi as any program since the 1930's," said Franklin A. Gennin, county executive director of the Pearl River-Hancock County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service Office (ASCS). Farmers should study their individual situations and decide on the best practices for use on conservation use acreage.

The 1983 Farm Program will give many farmers an opportunity to perform soil building practices. Thousands of acres in the State have been mono-cropped for years. The program helps take this land out of production and provides farmers the opportunity of preventing soil erosion, returning land to better use, improving soil fertility, and controlling pests. Farmers can also test the soil and add necessary elements such as phosphate, potash and lime.

While many soil building practices can be performed and many options can be exercised, many factors will determine how much can be done with Conservation Use Acres (CUA) and still meet the requirements of certification. Practices for use in 1983 will vary depending, among other things, on whether the acreage is land that should be taken out of cultivation or whether the acreage is land that returns to production in 1984.

For land that should be taken out of production in 1984 some alternatives are: tree planting; wildlife food plots; establishing permanent pasture; and native vegetation managed according to ASCS regulations.

For land that returns to production in 1984 some alternatives are: cover crops such as summer legumes, millet and other summer grasses; wildlife practices; native vegetation managed according to program recommendations; fallow where approved (on fields with less than 3 percent slope); skip row in cotton managed according to ASCS regulations; and land forming and terracing.

Before using any of these suggestions, farmers should check with the Pearl River-Hancock County ASCS Office to see if their selected practices are permitted and obtain details for managing the acreage for 1983.

NOTICE OF PROPOSAL TO LEASE
(TRACT-MS-43-1-L)
Notice is hereby given that the Mineral Lease Division of the Bureau of Geology of the Mississippi Department of Natural Resources, P.O. Box 5348, 2225 North West Street, Jackson, Mississippi 39206, will receive bids until 5:00 P.M. on August 9, 1983, covering a lease for only oil and gas and all constituent products produced therefrom (both hydrocarbon and nonhydrocarbon) and sulphur, on certain State-owned lands located in Hancock County, Mississippi, comprising approximately 86.44 acres, more or less, and more particularly described below:
All State-owned lands subject to the ebb and flow of the Gulf of Mexico below the watermark of ordinary mean high tide (both tides and submerged lands) in the following claims and/or sections, or portions thereof:
TOWNSHIP 7 SOUTH, RANGE 15 WEST, Sections 34, 35 & 36.
All bids shall be submitted on forms provided by Mineral Lease Division, or reproductions thereof. Each bid, whether submitted in person, by mail, or by courier, shall be placed in a sealed envelope with description of the tract covered by the bid on the face of the envelope.
All bids must be addressed to the Mineral Lease Division, Bureau of Geology, Department of Natural Resources, P.O. Box 5348, 2225 North West Street, Jackson, Mississippi 39206, and must be accompanied by a certified or cashier's check for the full amount of the bonds considered. Bids may be delivered personally to either John D. Kellis, Chief, Mineral Lease Division, Alvin R. Bicker, Jr., Bureau Director, at the Bureau of Geology, 2225 North West Street, Jackson, Mississippi, or to Charles L. Blalock, Executive Director, at the Department of Natural Resources, Southport Mall, 2380 Highway 80 West, Jackson, Mississippi. Bids will be opened at 2:00 P.M. on August 10, 1983, at 2225 Highway 80 West, Jackson, Mississippi, at which time they will be considered for formal action by the Commission on Natural Resources. The lease term used shall be Producers 88-D 9083 (Revised October 1, 1984) With Pooling Provision, with the following specific terms:
1. The lease will cover only oil and gas and all constituent products produced therefrom (both hydrocarbon and nonhydrocarbon) and sulphur.
2. The primary term of the lease will be three (3) years.
3. Delay rental will be $5.00 per acre per annum.
4. Royalty on sulphur will be 20%.
5. Royalty on oil and gas will be 20%.
6. Shut-in royalty will be $1,000.00 per acre well per year.
7. The lease will cover only such interest as is owned by the State of Mississippi and such lease will be without warranty of title or accuracy of description of the described property.
The only item to bid is cash bonus consideration and the best bid will be determined upon bonus consideration offered. The Commission reserves the right to reject any or all bids.
The successful bidder will be required to pay the cost of this advertisement and may be required to furnish a performance bond.
This, the 28th day of July, 1983.

Marketing specialist gives 'here's how' on souffle

By ANNO O. RUSHING

What is a souffle? From the novice to the professional cook, not many people actually know what a souffle is and even fewer have tried making one.

Most cooks think that a souffle is difficult to prepare, when in reality the opposite is true. Most of us have heard rumors of cooks toiling over a recipe for hours only to find that their efforts were to no avail upon taking a sunken souffle out of the oven. This has produced an unfounded fear of souffle making. Souffles need not bring fear if you know and understand the basis of souffle making and what they really are.

The word souffle means puff in French. In the food world, a souffle is a dish which puffs up dramatically in the oven. A standard recipe for making such a dish consists of a thick white sauce blended with egg yolks and leavened with stiffly beaten egg whites. Pureed, shredded or finely chopped foods may be added to the recipe for flavor. Depending on the ingredients added a souffle may be served as a main dish, side dish or dessert.

A traditional souffle dish is nice but not a necessary part of souffle making. Any oven proof, straight-sided casserole, baking dish, soup cups or mugs will suffice. The size of the dish, however, is an important factor to consider. If the dish is too large, the mixture will not rise above the rim to produce the lofty puff that is part of a souffle's charm.

The dish used should not be buttered or greased unless it is also dusted with fine dry breadcrumbs, cornmeal or grated Parmesan cheese. An uncoated buttered dish is slippery and won't let the mixture climb the sides to reach its maximum height.

The proper separation of egg yolks and egg whites is an important step in souffle making. It's easiest to separate eggs when they are cold and straight from the refrigerator. However, whites will beat up to their highest volume when allowed to sit at room temperature for about half an hour.

A copper bowl and balloon whisk are not necessary equipment for souffle making. The important thing is to make sure that the glass or metal bowl and beaters used are clean. Plastic bowls are not good to use because they retain fat.

Beating the whites to the proper degree is an essential step in souffle preparation. Overbeaten egg whites will form dry puffs that do not hold air well and are difficult to fold into the yolk mixture. Tilt the bowl to test the stiffness of the whites. If they slip and slide in the bowl, beat just a little longer. When they no longer slip, they are ready.

Folding the egg yolks into the whites is important. Pour the yolk mixture onto the whites, then fold through the whites until no streaks of egg yolk remain. The idea is to blend in the yolks without breaking the air bubbles beaten into the whites.

With the bounty of versatile Mississippi eggs at hand, and these tips, souffles should show up on your table more often. Try this recipe for starters.

Hot Chocolate Souffle
¼ cup sugar, divided
½ cup unsweetened cocoa
½ cup all-purpose flour

¼ teaspoon salt
1½ cups milk
¼ teaspoon vanilla
6 eggs, separated
¼ teaspoon cream of tartar
In medium saucepan, combine ¼ cup of the sugar, cocoa, flour and salt. Stir in milk. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until mixture boils and is smooth and thickened. Stir in vanilla. Set aside.

In large mixing bowl, beat egg whites with cream of tartar at high speed until foamy. Add remaining sugar, 2 tablespoons at a time, beating constantly until sugar is dissolved (rub a bit of meringue between thumb and forefinger to feel if sugar is dissolved) and whites are glossy and stand in soft peaks. Thoroughly blend egg yolks into reserved sauce. Gently, but thoroughly, fold yolk mixture into whites.

Gently pour into 2 to 2½ quart souffle dish or casserole. Bake in preheated 350° oven about 30 to 40 minutes, until puffy, delicately browned and souffle shakes slightly when oven rack is gently moved back and forth. Serve immediately. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Williams, all were the first cadets on the Mississippi Gulf Coast to attend the one-week State Law Enforcement Academy recently in Laurel. He explained the cadet program helps local youths appreciate the work of a police officer. Ladner also noted the 19 youths in the program assist in traffic control at softball games, searches and patrols. (Staff photo by Wayne Ducomb Jr.)

Olin Corporation offering $1,000 scholarships to black colleges

Prospective students at Jackson State, Alcorn State and Mississippi Valley State Universities are eligible for two $1,000 scholarships to be given away at the National Urban League Convention in New Orleans, La. July 31-Aug. 3.

High school juniors and seniors planning to attend Dillard or Xavier Universities in New Orleans; Grambling (La.) State University; Florida A&M; Rust College in Mississippi; Talladega College or Tuskegee Institute, both in Alabama, are also eligible for the scholarships. Olin Corporation, a diversified chemical company based in Stamford, Conn., will sponsor the $1,000 scholarship awards at the convention.

The awards are for junior or senior high school students and are to be used specifically at one of the 89 historically black four-year colleges and universities in the U.S., including those in the area mentioned above.

The winners' names will be announced at two drawings — Aug. 1 at 11 a.m. and Aug. 3 at 11 a.m. at an Olin exhibit at the convention.

In addition to high school juniors and seniors, parents, grandparents, brothers, sisters, uncles and aunts of juniors and seniors are also eligible to enter the contest.

The students who win must be enrolled in one of the 89 schools by Sept. 1985 in order to receive the award. The scholarship program ties in with Olin's exhibition theme this year: "America's Future Depends on Education," part of the company's effort to show its commitment to education, especially black education, which has been hurt by federal cutbacks on government-sponsored scholarship programs.

The exhibit will feature information on the 89 historically black four-year schools in the U.S., along with information on Olin's history and products.

To sign up for the scholarship award, drop by the Olin exhibit (Booth 223) before 11 a.m. Aug. 1.

Peppermill to repeat 'Woolgatherer'

Woolgatherer, presented to a sell out crowd at the Peppermill dinner-theater Saturday, will be repeated Sunday at 1 p.m.

The Woolgatherer is the story of a tender love between a truck driver and a young lady, played respectively by Rusty Blackwell and Mitzi Plessala.

Sunday's show will be the last presentation of the Woolgatherer locally featuring Blackwell and Plessala as both will be off to college in the fall.

Advance reservations must be made by calling the Peppermill Restaurant at 467-8130 after 4 p.m.

Tougher university requirements present challenge to high schools

High school students in the majority of the states will have to pass stiffer admission requirements shortly if they expect to be accepted into state universities, according to survey results announced recently by the National Association of Secondary School Principals (NASSP).

"The nation apparently is experiencing a major shift in university admission requirements," reported Scott Thomson, NASSP executive director. "A majority of states, some 27 in all, have already revised admission requirements or have major study commissions currently underway."

High school students and their parents should check with guidance counselors to determine whether their plans for higher education will be affected by these changes, Thomson urged.

Some colleges are calling for more mathematics, English, social science, and foreign language courses. Other university systems are raising college admission test score requirements, upgrading class rank requirements, or raising grade point average requirements of their applicants.

The survey was conducted this spring and results were reported in a new monograph, "College Admissions: New Requirements by the State Universities."

Survey forms asking the current status and direction of admission requirements were mailed to the presidents of the university system in each state. All 50 states responded.

"The higher expectations of incoming freshmen reflect society's demands for greater emphasis on mathematics, science, foreign language and English classes," Thomson said. "People called for more attention to these academic courses after Sputnik was launched, and they are doing it again."

Thirteen states have already placed higher admission mandates on the books.

The tougher requirements began last fall in Alabama, Alaska, Georgia, New Mexico, South Dakota, and Washington.

Others increasing their standards in coming years are California, Mississippi, Nebraska, Ohio, Texas, Utah, and West Virginia.

Fourteen other states are presently conducting major studies of their college admission requirements, according to the NASSP report. These include Arizona, Arkansas, Connecticut, Idaho, Illinois, Kentucky, Maryland, Massachusetts, Missouri, New Jersey, Oregon, South Carolina, Virginia, and Wyoming. Washington, which has already hiked its standards, also has a study underway.

"Additional mathematics credits are cited most frequently (among higher requirements), followed by social science, with English and science tied for third place," reported Thomson.

These tougher entrance requirements may bring a new challenge for high schools throughout the country, according to Thomson.

"Among frequently-cited increases were those in mathematics and science with which the nation is experiencing a teacher shortage," he said. "The new requirements will likely raise student enrollments in these classes, compounding an already difficult situation."

He also predicted that students will compete more vigorously to attain sufficient grades which may bring about a "more workmanlike atmosphere" in many high schools.

UNO fees hiked, non-residents to pay $1,147

A fee increase of $120 per semester at the University of New Orleans has been approved, effective with the 1983 fall semester, by the Louisiana State University Board of Supervisors.

The increase, which represents a 32 percent hike, brings the fee to $492 a semester for full-time undergraduate and graduate students who are residents of Louisiana.

Stressing that UNO's tuition is still below the national average, UNO Acting Chancellor Cooper R. Mackin says that it is unfortunate that the state can not afford to allocate more funds to higher education.

"I realize that it is going to be a burden on the students," he says. "But I am equally certain that our students want the highest quality education possible. Even with the increase we are in no state of luxury and allocations are only being made where absolutely necessary and where they relate to the academic excellence of the university."

Full-time, non-resident undergraduate students will pay $1,147 a semester, and their graduate counterparts, $932. The fee for a full-time Louisiana resident enrolled in the summer session will be $311, an increase of $76, beginning in 1984. Full-time, non-resident, undergraduates will pay $636 in the summer, an increase of $76, and full-time, non-resident graduate students, $501, an increase of $113. Fees for part-time students are being increased proportionately.

As part of the LSU System, UNO's funding level from the state is determined primarily by a formula devised and maintained by the Board of Regents and implemented by the Governor and the Legislature, says Dr. Mackin.

As devised and when funded at 100 percent, the formula was to provide Louisiana universities with appropriations equal to the average tax supported appropriations received by other comparable schools in the Southeast and Southwest. The 1982-83 initial formula appropriation for the LSU System was 87.7 percent of full implementation.

A mid-year budget reduction, made necessary by decreasing state revenues, reduced the formula funding level to 83.8 percent of full implementation. The Legislature is now considering 82.6 percent implementation for the LSU System for 1983-84, with some legislators contending that the appropriation may have to be reduced even further.

According to Acting Chancellor Mackin, the UNO fee increase will generate approximately $2,400,000. He adds that while Louisiana universities have made progress in the past few years, they still do not receive state appropriations per student as high as comparable national or Southern Regional Education Board schools.

BAND CAMP

Local students are sharpening their bandmanship at the University of Southern Mississippi Southern Fine Arts Festival which is in its 31st year.

Area students participating in the Auxiliary and Dixie Darling Camps include Sharon Koennn, Jennifer Rester, Tammy Skipper, Donna Smith, Tanya Sulik and Tina Thompson, all of Hancock North Central High School.

Attending from Bay High is Jarrod White.

These camps for flag, rifle, baton and marching corps, as well as drum majors and dance lines, are composed of 250 seventh through 12th grad students representing 50 schools in four states.

The camp will conclude with competitions for best majorette, twirler, strutter, drum major among other honors. The second half of the festival for band musicians runs through July 22.

Students, faculty, administration salute Class of 1983 at Pass High Annual Awards Day

The annual Senior Awards Day at Pass Christian High School recently opened with processional by the band, invocation by Msgr. James McCough, singing of "The Star Spangled Banner," and welcoming address by Adrian J. Swanier, principal.

Bro. Canisius in volunteer youth service

BROTHER CANISIUS
Brother Canisius Schell, director of Project Do at St. Stanislaus, is spending the summer as a volunteer in a New Orleans program known as Youth Alternatives.

Headquarters for this agency is in the Greenhouse at 700 Frenchman St., a temporary haven for stranded and runaway boys and girls ages 12 through 17.

Professional counseling is provided these young people with the hope of reconciling them with their families.

Consultation is also offered to the parents regarding youth and their problems.

Youth Alternatives is a voluntary program for the residents at Greenhouse. They are not held for the police or for their parents. The average length of stay is approximately ten days.

Parental permission is necessary for residency. However, walk-in counseling is available 24 hours a day. The agency is non-profit and it has no religious affiliation.

Student Council President Glenn Dedeaux installed officers for the 1983-84 school year.

Tributes to the Class of 1983 included those by LeRoy Lizana, superintendent of schools, from the administration; a poem delivered by Miss Linda Lightsey—"A Blueprint For Living"—from the faculty; a selection from Swearingen, "Chesford Portrait" by the band under the direction of Theodore Williams, and a tribute from the student body given by Valentine Dedeaux, junior class president.

Comments and presentations were given by the Senior Class officers Glenn Dedeaux, president; James McKay, vice-president; Kim Swanier, secretary-treasurer; and Michael Bailey, reporter.

Awards were then presented to seniors who maintained the highest scholastic average during four years of High School.

Those receiving awards were John Schramm, art; Julia Terrell, band; Laura Marie, business education; Rae Lynne Ladner, English; Traci Lynn Bonney, foreign language, French and national French Award; Terrie Pujol, Vogue Socialite Club Outstanding Home Economics Award; Jeannette Bernard, math and National Math Award; Rae Lynne Ladner, Science Award; Tracy Dugue, Social Studies Award; Kerry Gallagher, Vocational Award and Physical Education Award; Benjamin Fields, Most Athletic; and Wendy Pitzer, French Award.

John Deem, assistant principal, recognized the seniors who had been named to "The Society of Distinguished American High School Students" and Who's Who Among American High School Students, and Tracy Dugue who was a finalist in the 1983 National Achievement Scholarship competition.

He then recognized students who were nominated to The United States Achievement Academy in Foreign Language - French—Jeanette Bernard, Traci Bonney, Toni Bradley, Alice McKay, and Wendy Pitzer.

Beta Club sponsors, Miss Lindsay Lightsey and Miss Karen Fayard, presented Beta stoles to graduating Senior Beta Club members.

Swanier, assisted by Deem, awarded honor cords to honor students Traci Barfield, Tracy Bonney, Toni Bradley, Glenn Dedeaux, Tracy Dugue, Rae Lynne Ladner, Alice McKay, Deborah Marquez, Wendy Pitzer, and Julia Terrell.

Traci Bonney was presented the Star Student Certificate. She in turn named Mrs. Linda Jordan as the Star Teacher.

James C. McKay was presented the Citizenship Medal. Rae Lynne Ladner was named the Governor's Scholar and Jamie Jenkins was presented the medal for Best All Around Student.

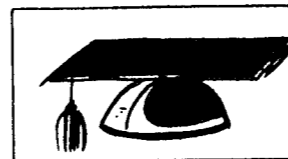

Four seniors were named to the Hall of Fame and presented trophies. Those named were Timothy Allen, Glenn Dedeaux, Tracey Ann Dugue, and Rae Lynne Ladner.

Traci Bonney was announced as salutatorian and Rae Lynne Ladner as valedictorian. Both received trophies from Swanier.

Lizana awarded Dale Moran, senior social studies teacher, a certificate of appreciation for his 15 years of service at Pass Christian High School.

The Alma Mater was then sung by the class and audience.

After Benediction, the recessional followed.

The standards and symbols we use today for graduation attire were set back in 1894 by the Intercollegiate Commission.

WHEN THE MAIN THING TO WATCH WAS THE RADIO AND THE LIGHT BILL WAS MAINLY FOR THE LIGHT.

Jack Benny. The Shadow. Edward R. Murrow broadcasting from war-torn London. Mississippi Power families gathered around those bulky, boxy radios for news and entertainment. Besides that, their electricity needs were few: a refrigerator, a couple of fans. And electric lights. No wonder electricity bills were smaller then.

Over the past forty years, electricity and technology have substantially improved the quality of our lives. Conveniences you hardly even think about: home air conditioning, frost-free refrigerators, electric clothes dryers, microwave ovens, color televisions, home computers, dozens of others. Maybe your one reminder of this expanded service is the bill you receive each month from Mississippi Power.

Electricity Usage and Price 1943 vs. 1982
	Average Annual Kilowatt-hour Usage/Customer	Average Annual $/Kilowatt-hour	Average Annual Residential Bill
1943	1,057	3.77	$ 39.84
1982	10,915	6.06	$661.52

*A kilowatt-hour is the electricity necessary to light ten 100-watt light bulbs for one hour.

Look at the comparative chart. Residential customers on the average are using more than ten times as much electricity today. And bills are higher, not only because of increased usage, but also because it now costs more to produce electricity.

For example, just as your gasoline costs have skyrocketed, so has the cost of the fuel we burn to generate power. As a matter of fact, since the Arab Oil Embargo of 1973, our average cost of fuel per kilowatt-hour generated has more than quadrupled.

But in forty years, our price per kilowatt-hour has not even doubled. We know that's a claim most other goods and services couldn't make.

Our point is simple. When you stop to think of it, you'll realize what good value you're getting for the money you spend on electricity.

But maybe you're skeptical. Why not get out your last bill from Mississippi Power and break it down for yourself? Divide by the number of days each month and the number of people in your household. The result is your average electricity cost per person, per day, and might look something like this:

EXAMPLE
Mississippi Power Bill	Number of Days per Month	Number in Household	A Day per Person for Electricity
$140.00	30	4	$1.17

Electricity from Mississippi Power. A good value in '43. A better value in '83. Even when the light bill is for more than just the lights.

One of a series. If you have a question about your electric service or Mississippi Power, call or write. The address is on your bill stub.

Ole Miss researchers eyeing processes to utilize extensive lignite reserves

With five billion tons of lignite coal ready to be mined, Mississippi may one day become a prominent energy producer if research at The University of Mississippi is productive.

Mississippi's plentiful lignite deposits are of low quality. High ash and water content cause production problems that are difficult to deal with economically.

But Dr. William Genetti, chairman of the Department of Chemical Engineering, and Dr. Yam Lee, an assistant professor, have constructed a pilot-sized fluidized bed combustor that can handle the lignite more efficiently in the production of electricity and provide several other distinct advantages.

Because it operates at lower temperatures than conventional systems, polluting nitrous oxide and sulfur dioxide emissions are low and ash agglomeration that clogs conventional equipment is reduced.

The fluidized bed combustion system, also being studied in other parts of the country with other coal types, can sustain combustion with coals containing as much as 70 percent moisture, important here because some of Mississippi's lignite has as much as 40 percent moisture.

Dr. Genetti noted that the most obvious uses of Mississippi lignite are for electric power generation or for production of steam for industrial uses.

In the Eastern United States, the new combustion system is being found effective in combining the high sulfur coals of that region. Conventional systems have resulted in nitrous oxide and sulfur dioxide emissions that have contributed to "acid rain" problems in the Northeast and in Canada.

There are two primary objectives of the Ole Miss research. The combustion demonstration unit on campus is being used to determine optimum operating conditions for the high moisture, high ash and low heating values of the state's lignites.

Secondly, several of the phenomena that occur in the process, such as drying and devolatilization, will be studied to gain greater insight into using the lignite resource.

In addition to the five billion tons that experts say could be mined readily in Mississippi, there is an additional five billion tons that are now economically prohibitive to extract with existing methods.

But while it now isn't economical to mine any of it, the development of this new, more efficient combustion system, coupled with increasingly higher prices for natural gas and petroleum as competing fuels, and growing energy needs, could change the economic picture significantly in the years ahead.

Dr. Genetti believes the long-range outlook is promising that the lignites will be in demand at a price that makes it feasible both to mine and process them for industrial and utility usage — provided they don't have to be shipped over long distances.

The picture is really bigger than Mississippi. The Gulf Coast lignite deposits extend over some 1,000 miles from the Texas-Mexico border to an area near the Alabama-Georgia line, covering portions of eight states as far north as Missouri and Kentucky. It is estimated at 35 billion tons.

Production of fuel from the deposit has increased from two million tons a year 10 years ago to 32 million last year — the large majority of it in Texas, which has had both more money and more demand for electricity than Mississippi.

It is projected that overall production from the 35 billion ton deposit will reach 126 million tons annually by 1995.

Dr. Genetti believes that when new production facilities are considered — the fluidized bed combustion system may be an obvious choice.

To put the size of the Gulf Coast resource in perspective, Dr. Genetti noted that it is equivalent in real fuel value to more than twice the region's proven oil and gas reserves.

One ton of lignite coal can yield about two barrels of oil, and is comparable in quality, sometimes superior, to the Texas lignite now being mined and combusted by conventional methods. There is the added advantage in Mississippi that mined land can be revegetated more readily and cheaply than in Texas because of better soil and more rainfall.

4-H Specialist reports:

Agriculture-related job opportunities plentiful

A wide array of opportunities exist for young people who may want to consider a career in agriculture, one of America's most vital industries.

"It takes a host of people trained in a wide range of subject and technical areas to keep our country's giant agricultural system producing effectively," said Dr. Ann Jarratt, a 4-H youth development specialist with the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service.

Mrs. Jarratt specializes in career development in her work with 4-H clubs in Mississippi. She said a career in agriculture today can take a young person either onto the farm or into a variety of jobs far removed from daily farm life.

"If you let your mind wander to your favorite hamburger establishment and trace the hamburger back to its beginning on the farm, you may begin to see the wide range of jobs and skills needed to get the burger to your plate," Mrs. Jarratt said.

She said people in jobs such as animal nutrition, meat inspection and grading, truck driving, restaurant buying and food service are all involved in agriculture.

"You could also add a veterinarian, an agricultural engineer, a banker, a rancher, an accountant and Extension Service scientists who consult on the production of the beef animal," Mrs. Jarratt said. "A marketing specialist also may have made recommendations on when and how to sell the animal."

The specialist said agribusiness is a broad career classification which generally involves a job setting away from the farm but requires knowledge and skills in agriculture.

"Agribusiness jobs tend to be concentrated in manufacturing, trade, agricultural services and government sectors," she said. "An agricultural accountant, for example, would be a person with a degree in accounting and selected courses in agriculture."

"Those interested in teaching and in agriculture have the options of being high school teachers who teach vocational agriculture or Cooperative Extension Service employees who also teach agriculture subjects but not in the formal classroom. These people teach in local communities where the people live and work."

Mrs. Jarratt said important jobs exist in agriculture for young people interested in science in fields of agronomy, plant pathology, entomology, genetics, physiology, analysis and chemistry.

She said the "Dictionary of Occupational Titles (DOT)" lists at least 247 different service and professional opportunities for agricultural college graduates.

"Job titles in agriculture almost span the alphabet," she said.

Among them are jobs for agricultural advertising writers, beekeepers, consumer marketing specialists, dairy technologists, ecologists, farm appraisers, plant and animal geneticists, horticulturists, landscape architects, park managers, radio farm directors, seed brokers, and zoologists.

"All these fields are available to qualified agriculture graduates," Mrs. Jarratt said.

"Genius does what it must, and talent does what it can."
